YOUNGMAN DIDN'T HIT BARUCH

Senator Declares He Did Not Say Financier Profited Stain Soldiers

A statement by State Senator Youngman, before committee, that "some persons had scandously made money out of the bodies of the boys who fought for this country," did not refer to Bernard M. Baruch, the financier, it was declared by Senator Youngman in the Senate today.

The senator's correction was made in answer to exceptions taken by Baruch following Senator Young's appearance before the Constitutional Law Committee at the State House several days ago.

An open hearing was asked by the financier, who desired, he said, to give the senator a chance to prove his charges.

In the Senate today Senator Youngman, rising on point of personal privilege, said:

"I did not refer to Mr. Baruch at all when I said that some persons had scandalously made money out of the bodies of the boys who fought for this country.

WAS "MISQUTED."

"I had in mind, and referred to, another and later congressional investigation in which I believe Mr. Baruch was not in any way involved. I had in mind the acts which I believe kept many of the boys in our military camps from having overcoats during the terrible Winter of 1917-18.

"I beg to say that I have been misquoted so far as the statement applies to him.

Youngman said Baruch could appear before the committee and make a public statement, if he so desired, but added that the committee had no power to make a finding as to what Baruch did or did not do.

DID NOT FEAR BARUCH.

Senator Youngman also said:

"A witness before the committee put in a statement by Mr. Baruch favoring one of the bills under my hearing and I remarked that during the World War he had made nearly half a million dollars in a few days by speculation in war stocks.

"I said this without the slightest malice, and in substance it is true. I made a bare statement of fact fully justified by Mr. Baruch's testimony before the House Committee on Rules investigation.

"In the record of that testimony it appeared that Mr. Baruch had made

Ludendorff 'Talked Big But Lacked Common Sense'

Munich, March 10 (I.N.S.)—General Von Lossow, former commander of the Bavarian Reichswehr, whose troops brought about the collapse of the Munich nationalist uprising last November, testified today in the Ludendorff-Hitler high treason trial, assailing General Erich Ludendorff and Adolf Hitler as "vain, ambitious braggarts."

Von Lossow declared that Ludendorff and Hitler "talked big, but lacked common sense." He revealed that he did not take the nationalists' plans seriously.

"My agreement to take part in the 'beer cellar putsch' was only part of the comedy," he explained. "I wanted to maintain freedom of action."

DR. STEVENS IS HELD IN LOWE GIRL'S CASE

Woburn Physician Accused of Illegal Surgery in Secret Indictment

Dr. Michael M. Stevens of Woburn, who was acquitted by a jury two years ago in connection with the death in his office of Grace Logue, a nurse, was today arraigned on a secret indictment in Middlesex Superior Court, charging him with illegal surgery on Gertrude Lowe, a Melrose Hospital employe.

Dr. Michael Stevens

Dr. Stevens pleaded not guilty and was held in $2,000 for trial. The girl, who is twenty-five years old, was at first thought to be dying and made a statement implicating Dr. Stevens and Myer Fisher, twenty-three years old, of No. 69 Seaview avenue, Malden. She is now expected to recover.

Stevens and Fisher were then arrested and arraigned in Woburn District Court. Evidence was later turned over to the district attorney, resulting in the indictment against the doctor.

BROKER IN $5,000,000 CRASH GETS JAIL TERM

New York, March 10.—Burtill Ruskay, former active head of S. S. Ruskay & Co., stock brokers, which recently failed for $5,000,000, today was sentenced to the penitentiary by Supreme Court Justice Nott. He was convicted last week of trading against a customer's account.

The term of the sentence will be determined by the parole board. The law provides imprisonment of from three months to three years. On motion of counsel for Ruskay, a certificate of reasonable doubt was granted Justice Nott. Bail was fixed at $25,000.

CARDINAL ON WAY TO BOSTON

Hub Prelate Fails to Wait for Elevation of Hayes and Mundelein

Rome, March 10 (A.P.).—Cardinal O'Connell of Boston left for Naples today and is sailing for home on the liner Franconia, which leaves this afternoon.

He was accompanied by Mgr. Michael J. Splaine and Father Richard Haberlin of Boston.

When asked why he was not staying for the Eastern Consistory, at which Archbishops Hayes and Mundelein of Chicago are to be raised to the candinalate, he replied:

"The stage must be left clear for Hayes and Mundelein. This is their day; they must have it all by themselves."

Cardinal O'Connell, while here, was waited upon by visitors of all kinds. Cardinals, papal diplomats, princes and princesses of the old aristocracy and priests from many lands called to pay their respects.

In his last public statement before sailing for home Cardinal O'Connell gave expression to his opinion of the efforts of American Methodists to make converts in Rome of Italians brought up in the Catholic faith.

Preaching in the Church of St. Susanna, in the neighborhood of the American Embassy, the New England churchman denounced the work of proselytizers as "both un-Christian and un-American."

"These proselytizers," the Cardinal said, "would rob little children of their faith, and make agnostics out of a people with the richest Christian heritage. They are offering insult to true Christians at the very centre of their faith. That faith is the greatest gift that God can make to man."

JANE COWL STANDS FOR "EQUITY SHOP"

New York, March 10.—"Jane Cowl, the manager, will go down before Jane Cowl, the actress," in the threatened theatre war between the Actors' Equity Association and the Producing Managers' Association—set for June 1.

In one terse sentence Jane Cowl herself a manager as well as a stage player, has deserted the side of her manager-husband, Adolph Klauber, to take her stand with the opposition in a struggle that bids fair to be even more bitter than the famed "actors' strike" in 1919.

Miss Cowl was one of 1,200 actors who voted almost unanimously at a mass meeting to sustain the principal demands of the Equity shop" [illegible] agreements by any theatre manager in the country.

DOG BITES FOUR JAMAICA PLAIN CHILDREN

Three boys and a girl were bitten by a collie dog, believed to have the rabies, who ran amuck in the Day street section of Jamaica Plain. The crazed animal was later captured by the police and sent to the Arnold Memorial Hospital for observation.

The two most seriously bitten were Albert Lynsky, seventeen years old, of No. 7 Oakland avenue, Jamaica Plain, and Winifred Kenney of No. 16 Arcola street. A third victim was James Lynch. The name of the other boy, was not secured.

Lynsky was attacked while he was riding along Day street on a bicycle. The animal leaped into the air and sank its teeth into the boy's right arm, causing him to fall from his wheel. The animal then bit the youth's leg.

Then a panic ensued among the children and their mothers nearby. As Lynsky was taken to the office of a physician, James Lynch and a companion were attacked and bitten.

Shortly afterward, the Kenney girl ran to her home complaining that she had been bitten. Lynsky and the girl were ordered to report at the City Hospital for observation.

MELLON IS ACCUSED BY LEGION

Secretary Split War Profits With German, Veteran Charge

BY JOHN T. LAMBERT

Washington, March 10 (Cosmopolitan).—The American Legion today began a series of nation wide attacks upon the war record of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, with the charge that during the war he split profits with a German war lord who was supplying the German army with munitions to kill and maim American soldiers.

The profits thus divided "with the enemy" came out of the treasury of the United States government, the Legion declared.

The Legion's charge is based upon the ownership of the Koppers Company of Pittsburgh by the Mellon interests. The Legion declares:

"We have evidence to prove that the president of the Koppers Company is one of the men who has helped to finance the ex-Service Men's Anti-Bonus League.

"The Hon. Newton D. Baker testified before the Graham committee that one profit-taking member was Heinrich Koppers, German Minister of Munitions. Therefore Mellon split this war bonus with the enemy."

The attack upon Mellon results from the fact that he is one of the most distinguished opponents of the bonus.

GOT $15,000,000.

The Legion says that Mr. Mellon and his relatives, R. B. Mellon and T. E. Mellon, were the owners also of the Standard Steel Car Company of Indiana, which was to build carriages for railroad artillery, but did not deliver a single carriage before the armistice. It finished 100 after the war and the government spent $18,000,000 on the venture.

It is also said officially by the Legion that Mr. Mellon's Baltimore Car & Foundry Company paid French and American civilian laborers $8.60 a day, while American soldiers, working at their side, received only $1.01 a day. Also that Mellon's Aluminum Company of America received a price increase bonus of 200 per cent. during the war.

Candler's Son Wins in $100,000 Suit by Beauty

Decatur, Ga., March 10.—A jury today awarded a verdict in favor of Walter T. Candler, Atlanta capitalist, in a $100,000 suit brought against him by Mrs. Clyde K. Byfield, beauty contest winner.

The suit grew out of an alleged physical attack which Mrs. Byfield charged was made by Candler.

Evidence was given that Byfield, on finding Candler in his wife's stateroom, demanded Candler pay him $25,000.

Candler said he gave Byfield a check for $25,000 to "keep his mouth shut." He paid Byfield $2,000 in cash and gave him a note for $20,500 in exchange for the check.

Candler entered suit against Byfield to recover the note. Mrs. Byfield then brought suit against Candler.

$5,000 LOAD OF ALCOHOL SEIZED IN DORCHESTER

Four Men Captured With a Truck on Lawson's Wharf Held as Suspicious Persons

A truck loaded with alcohol valued at $5,000 was seized by the Dorchester police as it was pulling away from the Lawson wharf, Freeport street, Dorchester, early today.

In addition, thirty-eight cans of alcohol found on the wharf were also seized. The haul was made by officers from the Fields Corner station, who were tipped off that the Lawson wharf has been used as an unloading place for booze since the South Shore was closed to rum-runners several weeks ago.

Along with the truck four men were arrested and were locked up on the charge of being suspicious characters.

It is believed the alcohol was hauled in fast motor boats from the "mother ship" anchored in the harbor outside the twelve-mile limit.

The arrests were made by Sergeant Peter McNiel and Patrolmen Miller and P. Casey.

While the police had been tipped

2 ROBBED AT POINT OF GUN

Manager and Clerk Forced to Give Up All Cash in the Place

When Charles Emanuel, manager of the Economy Grocery Store at No. 3095 Washington street, Roxbury, looked up while counting out a dozen oranges for a "customer" today, he found himself peering into the muzzle of a revolver.

The holdup man, who, with a companion, had entered the store a short time before, collected all the money he could find, including Saturday's receipts, a total of more than $200.

The bandits were fastidious to the extreme, refusing to touch about $8 in silver, which they found in the cash register, but did take $17 the personal property of Emanuel, after they temporarily forced him into a back room of the store.

The bandits at first found only the $8 contained in the cash register.

"We can't get along with this," said one. "We want all you've got."

When one of the gunmen, in addition, to flourishing the revolver, punched Emanuel in the jaw, the latter decided to give up the money concealed in the desk.

So frequent have become chain store robberies of late that the police established a special guard of two hundred officers Saturday night, to protect these stores.

Unlike the average store, the chain store manager, as a rule, prepares his cash in the morning and turns it over to one of the company's collectors during the day.

The leader of the two bandits is described as being between thirty-two and thirty-five years of age, about five feet seven inches tall and weighing about 155 pounds.

He wore a black overcoat, soft collar and brown soft hat. His face was red and smooth.

His companion is described as being the same age, about an inch shorter and wore a dark overcoat and gray cap.

The nature of the claims, which were for $15,000, was not given.

VETS ACCUSE MELLON OF SPLITTING WAR PROFITS WITH GERMAN

LEGION IN ATTACK ON SECRETARY

eral Daugherty's department are promised this week when the two Senate committees of inquiry take up the examination of well-known witnesses.

The week opens with the first break in President Coolidge's inherited cabinet by the departure of Secretary of the Navy Denby, whose resignation was forced by the oil inquiry. The President expects to name Denby's successor today.

Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher and intimate of the late President Harding, heads the list of important witnesses to appear before the oil committee.

Gaston B. Means, one-time Department of Justice secret service operative, and now under Federal indictment in New York city, has been summoned to tell of his trip to Palm Beach to see McLean.

The Daugherty committee, too, is relying on Means to substantiate many of the charges made against the Attorney General.

Leonard Wood, Jr., son of the Governor of the Philippines, has been subpoenaed to relate in detail his story that his father was offered the Republican Presidential nomination in 1920 in return for making the late Jake Hamon of Oklahoma Secretary of the Interior.

Leonard Wood, Jr. Gaston B. Means

Jake Hamon, Jr., and Mrs. John W. Gorman, formerly Clara Smith Hamon, whose hand held the pistol that killed the elder Hamon, likewise have been subpoenaed to tell what they know of the activities of publican Nafied S nator ...ns ready to take the stand as ... ...rse, Wednesday if the committee ...tired. Walsh wired Hamon, however, that the committee would not be prepared to examine him until the latter part of the week, if then, and told him to await further instructions.

Means also notified the committee today he would appear tomorrow for examination.

John F. Major, McLean's confidential man, has been recalled as the first witness tomorrow. This probably will delay McLean's appearance until Wednesday.

DAUGHERTY PROBE

The Daugherty Probe Committee will begin its activities with an effort to show a connection between oil interests and instructions issued to Federal agents with reference to gun-running for Mexican revolutionists.

Another witness, Harry S. Obbon, former Mayor of Calexico, Cal., was called today. Senator Wheeler of Montana said he expected information from Obbon and others to show that Fall was the "go-between" in the use of a fund of $1,000,000 raised largely by American oil companies to finance the Cantu revolution.

The committee is informed that recognition of the revolutionary government was promised contingently and that Fall and others had conferences looking to its success.

Another line of the Daugherty investigation disclosed today relates to Mr. Daugherty's selections of Federal judges.

ALSO CALL WOOD.

Anti-Daugherty members of the committee maintain that they will show how orders from Washington directed government agents to cease their drive against gun-runners.

The Daugherty committee also will compete with the oil committee for the testimony of Leonard Wood, Jr., and others in connection with the story that the Hamon group offered to assist General Wood in his efforts to obtain the Republican nomination.

Aty.-Gen. Daugherty Edward B. McLean

Numerous other persons connected with the Wood 1920 campaign will be called by the Daugherty investigators.

This week also will witness the initiation of court action by Special Counsel Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene to protect government interests in connection with the Teapot Dome and California Naval Oil Reserve leases to Harry F. Sinclair and E. L. Doheny.

Roberts and Pomerene left Washington today for Cheyenne, where action will be taken in connection with the Sinclair lease of the Teapot Dome reserve. From Cheyenne, they will proceed to Los Angeles to initiate proceedings in the case of the Doheny lease on Naval Reserve No. 1.

Harry F. Sinclair, his counsel, Colonel J. W. Zevely and five attorneys departed today for Cheyenne to contest the government action to cancel the leases. He expressed confidence of ultimate victory and vindication.

It was indicated the Sinclair legal force is prepared to make the stiffest kind of a battle throughout all the action to be instituted by the government to declare the oil leases invalid.

managers who own their stages.

But Jane Cowl, "lady tragedian"—the "crying Jane" of the stage—will sacrifice her husband and her own managerial aspirations in favor of the players' cause.

"This is no time for temporizing," she said in casting her lot with her fellow-Thespians. "We have tried to be fair.

"I am married to a manager and I am part manager of my own production, but in a competition of this kind Jane Cowl, the manager, will go down before Jane Cowl, the actress."

Three other women stars were included in the players who voted to "stand for Equity," Elsie Ferguson, Laurette Taylor and Ethel Barrymore.

DENBY QUITS TO TUNE OF "SEMPER FIDELIS"

Washington, March 10.—Secretary of the Navy Denby, who retired today, was sworn in as a major in the Marine Reserve Corps, with high officers of the Navy and Marine Corps in attendance.

The oath was administered by Major-General Lejeune, commandant of the Marine Corps.

Just as the ceremony was concluded, the Marine Band, grouped on the street outside, played the corps march, "Semper Fidelis."

The retiring Secretary's desk was decorated with flowers from friends and admirers.

As his last official act he greeted the naval attaches from the embassies and legations in Washington, who came in full uniform, and hundreds of civilian employes of the Navy Department, who passed in line to shake hands and say goodbye.

WHEELER 'LIAR' AND 'MISTAKE,' SAYS DOHENY

Declares He Loaned Obregon $5,000,000 to Put Down Mexican Rebellions

New York, March 10 (I.N.S.).—"I have not only never aided revolutionists in Mexico, but have loaned the Obregon government $5,000,000 to aid it in putting down rebellions."

This answer was made today by E. L. Doheny, president of the Pan-American Petroleum Company, to the charges of Senator Wheeler of Montana, that Doheny, Harry F. Sinclair and the oil magnates, with the aid of the United States Department of Justice, had "fomented revolution in Mexico."

Doheny called Wheeler "a Senatorial liar" and "a political mistake, far more fit to sit in the Soviet

Senator Wheeler E. L. Doheny

Parliament of Moscow than in the Senate of the United States."

Senator Wheeler's statement, as reported in the press that he expects to show that I, in connection with others, furthered revolution against the Obregon government in Mexico, is absolutely false," Doheny said.

DENIES MEETING.

"It is just as false as his previous statement of February 19 that Harry F. Sinclair, Edward B. McLean and I had meetings in the apartment of Attorney-General Daugherty.

"On February 19 Wheeler made, on the floor of the Senate, his statement that there had been a meeting between Sinclair, McLean and myself. He was immediately informed of the falsity of his statement.

"The Walsh-Lenroot committee was called upon to subpoena and make him either prove his statement or retract it, as it would have done in the case of any private citizen.

"Two courses were open to Senator Wheeler. If he were truthful and honorable, to come before the committee and prove his assertions; if he were mistaken and a man of any courage, to come before the committee and retract his falsehood stand."

"SENATORIAL LIAR."

Wheeler chose the "latter course," Doheny said.

"I call him a senatorial liar and he accepts the imputation," he declared.

The charges that he aided revolt in Mexico were made by Wheeler "with like reckless disregard for the truth," Doheny said.

"I denounce this ridiculous charge as equally false for three reasons:

First—I would have been a fool to finance gun runners in Mexico. Secondly—I have actually loaned the Obregon government $5,000,000, which enabled it to put down the revolution; and, third, because Wheeler has said it."

off that rum runners were active on the Lawson wharf, their attention was first attracted by a light made by the men loading the truck.

Whether the rum-runner itself was still tied up at the wharf when the officers appeared is not known, as there was every opportunity for the craft to escape in the darkness.

The alcohol seized is all from Belgium. It is known that a British craft bearing such alcohol is anchored about 16 miles out in the harbor.

SEVERAL OPPOSE BIG GARAGE FOR BACK BAY

Judge William N. Prest of Suffolk Probate Court, Attorney Robert G. Dodge, Congressman Louis A. Frothingham and City Councilor William aWish were among many protestants today before the street commissioners against petition for the erection of a public garage at Nos. 18-20 Deerfield street, Back Bay.

J. D. Corbiere, president of Y. D. Service Garages, filed the petition, asking for permit to erect a 225-car garage with a gasoline store capacity of 4,000 gallons. The petition was taken under advisement.

Petition for a 250-car garage at Egremont road and Washington street, Brighton, opposed by Councilor Walsh, also was taken under advisement.

CAMBRIDGE YOUTHS HELD AS BURGLARS

Albert Jenkins, eighteen, of Soden street, Cambridge, believed by police to be responsible for a number of Cambridge store robberies, was before Judge Stone in East Cambridge Court today, charged with breaking and entering and larceny. He pleaded guilty and was bound over to the Grand Jury. George Walthers, nineteen, his companion, pleaded not guilty to the same charges and was held in $500 for a hearing.

U. S. WILL CURB AIR MONOPOLY, SAYS HOOVER

Never Will Permit Its Control by Any Single Individual or Trust

Washington, March 10 (I.N.S.).—The government will never allow radio broadcasting to be monopolized by any single corporation, individual or combination, Secretary of Commerce Hoover declared today in a public statement issued in connection with the radio war in New York by city officials and the American Telegraph & Telephone Company.

Sec. Hoover.

"While it is impossible for me to express any opinion on particular issues that are before the courts or the Federal Trade Commission," he said, "I can state emphatically that it would be most unfortunate for the people of this country to whom broadcasting has become an important incident of life if its control should come into the hands of any single corporation, individual or combination.

"It would be in principle the same as though the entire press of the country was so controlled.

"The effect would be identical whether this control arose under a patent monopoly or any form of combination, and from the standpoint of the people's interest the question of whether or not the broadcasting is for profit is immaterial.

"In the licensing system put in force by this department the life of broadcasting licenses is limited to three months so that no vested rights can be obtained either in a wave length or a license.

"I believe it is safe to say, irrespective of claims under patent rights on apparatus, that broadcasting will not cease and neither will our public policy allow it to become monopolized."

Business Hurt by Probe Hysteria, Schwab Says

Washington, March 10.—Congressional investigations were declared by Charles M. Schwab, at a conference today with President Coolidge, to have produced a state of public hysteria which is injuring business.

Charles M. Schwab

"I told the President," he said, "that general business conditions are sound, but that development and extension have been held up by the uncertainty due to this hysteria and the holding up of the administration's tax-reducing legislation."

Mr. Schwab also gave the President a survey of European conditions as ascertained during his recent two months' visit to Germany.

G. O. P. NEWSPAPERS ASSAILED BY HEFLIN

Washington, March 10 (I.N.S.).—Senator Heflin of Alabama today hissed a veiled tirade against what he termed the "unbridled Republican newspapers that are working in concert to nominate Mr. Coolidge."

He directed his attack particularly to the newspapers which have been assailing Democratic senators in connection with the oil scandal revelations.

200 DELEGATES LINE UP FOR COOLIDGE

Managers Tell Him Convention Will Be a "Ratification Meeting"

Washington, March 10 (I.N.S.).—While public attention has been centred upon the oil investigation the campaign managers of Calvin Coolidge have acquired nearly 200 delegates to the Republican convention.

Three months from today the Republicans meet at Cleveland to nominate and the Coolidge managers are so confident as a result of their preliminary work and surveys that they have informed the President it will be "simply a ratification meeting."

Up to today six States have instructed their delegates for Coolidge —Virginia, Kentucky, Iowa, South Carolina, Louisiana and Minnesota. By the end of the week four more States will have joined this list, the Coolidge managers claimed today. These are New Hampshire, Kansas, Colorado and Mississippi. The grand total of delegate strength from these ten States is 184.

The President will receive his first primary endorsement tomorrow in New Hampshire. Senator Hiram Johnson of California, the only avowed opponent of Coolidge, has not entered delegates in the State, and consequently the President will have no opponents there. All of the delegates have announced themselves for Coolidge save one—Senator George H. Moses, inasmuch as Senator Moses is accounted the original Coolidge man, there is little prospect that he will oppose the President.

WELLESLEY GIRLS PRY OFF TOP OF LOCKED TELEPHONE BOOTH

FIND WAY TO GET CALLS THROUGH

Act of Forgetfulness on Part of Watchman Fails to Balk the Athletic Fair Ones

The butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker don't mean much in the lives of the fair young Wellesley students.

But there are many other uses the girls find for the telephone installed in the dormitories—and it doesn't taken any Lupin or Lombroso to figure out just what these uses might be. So when the telephone is hors de combat, for any reason whatever, it is a serious matter.

Incidentally, the college authorities frown on the girls using the telephone during the nocturnal hours—the girls's being that the dormitory watchman lock the booth at 10 in the evening and unlock it at a portant calls.

When the watchman forgot the unlocking process in the morning and went along home to his more or less prosaic wife and youngsters, it looked as if romance, for the nonce at least, had been cold-blanketed.

The girls were expecting some important call.

"Jack" was due to call from Yale, and "Bill" at Brown was accustomed to whisper his sweet-nothings via Mr. Bell's contrivance.

The girls promptly pried off the top of the booth—much as they would pry the lid off a can of peanut butter.

All being athletes, they had little trouble in climbing over the top of the booth—their being no men-folks around to—well to criticise.

There were skinned knees and abrasions galore, but who cared—

Jack was told that he was perfectly acceptable for the coming prom and Bill learned that Wellesley Betty was still thinking of him.

Of course, when the janitor arrived in the morning everyone was glad—for broadcasting sweet-nothings from the telephone booth without a top has certain disadvantages.

'Cut Off My Hands', Cries Wife, Who Killed Her Husband

Wants to Be With Him in Death, She Declares, Telling of Hacking Mate

New York, March 10.—Mrs. Edith Gluckman, who hacked her husband to death with a hatchet, cried frantically to Magistrate Ryteberg: "Cut off my hands! That's what they do in Russia."

Describing her deed as a result of sixteen years of quarrels with her husband, Samuel Gluckman, forty-three years old, Mrs. Gluckman endeavored to inject an element of self-defence in her telling of the murder.

She interrupted her story from time to time by calling for water, part of which she drank and part of which she poured over a wound in her hand. This cut, she claimed, was received while she struggled with her husband for possession of the hatchet.

Mrs. Gluckman was highly excited. She all but collapsed when held with bail on a homicide charge. She called out:

"Take me away! I loved him! I want to be with him in death!"

At another time she shrieked:

"I love him, but he went around with other women!"

The woman, anxious to talk, said her husband came home late at night. When she inquired where he had been he ordered her to bed. He then went to the kitchen and took a hatchet, used for cutting kindling and returned to her room. The man, she added, threatened her life.

Gluckman slipped, the woman continued, and as he fell across the bed, she "gave him one knock and he dropped the hatchet." She then almost decapitated her husband and ran to the basement of their apartment. There she confessed to the janitor.

Jealous of her husband, she killed him with a hatchet. This International News Reel Photo was taken as she begged to be punished for her crime.

BLAKELEY DIVORCE CASE OFF

Taxi Man's Wife Ready to Fight, Only to Find Action Dismissed

Pretty young Mrs. Florance G. Blakeley, wife of Fred F. Blakeley, manager of the Town Taxicab Company, was probably one of the most surprised women in Boston today.

She appeared in the Suffolk Superior Court, divorce session, with her attorney, Colonel Percy A. Guthrie, to defend her name against charges by her husband, only to find that the allegations had been withdrawn.

Two years ago, when they had been married only a few months, Mrs. Blakeley sued for separate maintenance, claiming her husband was cruel and abusive.

In retaliation, she says, Blakeley sued for a divorce, charging his wife had not conducted herself properly.

The case dragged along until Mrs. Blakeley, who was all set to fight, today discovered the action was marked "case dismissed without prejudice."

Indignant, the young wife, she's only twenty-six, announced that she would insist on the case being reopened, as she wants to clear her name, only believing she can do it in open court.

At the time the Blakeleys parted, the wife said her husband insisted on her going out on "pajama" parties, where everyone acted "rough," but she couldn't go. She also said her husband insisted on keeping two big dogs in the apartment where his mother and another relative lived—all in two rooms.

Mrs. Blakeley insists that her conduct has always been above reproach, and that she intends, at all hazards, to clear her name.

When she first appeared in court she declared her husband operated taxicabs at the big Boston stations, where he picked up strange girls looking for respectable hotel rooms and took them instead to houses of doubtful reputation, where life was so roseate that frequently they stayed.

Mrs. Blakeley declared that she was at a loss to account for the ending of her husband's divorce action.

She declared she had sufficient witnesses to prove that her conduct has always been above reproach.

PLEADS "BRAINSTORM" IN BABY KILLING

MRS. NETTIE MAY MACLEAN

BABY ON HER LONG LAST TRIP

MacLean Child on the Way to Western Burial, Accused Parents Riding on Same Train

Portland, Me., March 10—One more long, sad journey was under way today by Baby Nettie and her mother, Mrs. Nettie May MacLean.

The young mother, who is said to have confessed smothering her child to death when spurned by her college student husband, Kenneth Ross MacLean, recently dropped from Bowdoin College, is on her way home to Tacoma, Wash.

The body of little Nettie is on the same train with Mr. and Mrs. MacLean, both of whom are under heavy bail for appearance before the May Grand Jury.

The twenty-six mile trolley trip on which Mrs. MacLean took the body of her infant from Brunswick to Portland, is as nothing to the present journey of 2,800 miles.

MacLean's father and Mrs. MacLean's mother, Mrs. Ossie Volk, both of whom came East to be with the young couple in their sudden trouble, also are on the train.

MacLean's father presided at secret funeral services for the baby in the Flaherty undertaking rooms on Saturday. He is an elder in the Presbyterian Church.

Vet Physically Fit Again; Seeks Mechanic's Job

Good mechanics are hard to find. But here is a chance for some employer in need of a good mechanic.

This mechanic is a rehabilitated war veteran—and he has been thoroughly rehabilitated. He was injured with the 101st Ambulance Corps.

He is thirty-three and has two dependants. He has had two years' training at the Newton Vocational School and five months' placement training.

If you have a place for a good mechanic call Congress 7600—the Boston Chamber of Commerce—and ask for Case No. 27.

WIDOW LURES HUSBAND; WIFE TRIES TO DIE

Cries of Two Children Prevent Suicide of Young Dorchester Woman

The cries of her two children as they pounded on the door of her apartment in an effort to get in, resulted in the saving of the life of Mrs. Laura Beatty, twenty-four, of No. 1 Torrey street, Dorchester, who attempted death by gas poisoning because of the attention her husband, William T. Beatty, is alleged to have been paying to a young Roxbury widow.

It was the crying husband's brother-in-law, smelling gas in the hallway after he had been alarmed by the children's cries, kicked open the door and saved her from death.

FINDS HER NOTE.

Beside the bed in which she lay moaning in agony, her brother-in-law found a note addressed to himself which read: "Take care of Emily and Catherine and see that they are not abused. I can't stand this much longer."

Beaty called Dr. L. A. Roberts of No. 691 Washington street, who administered first aid.

Mrs. Beatty's attempt to end her life followed the receipt of a telephone message from her husband sent through a neighbor that he was going to leave her "for good" and that it would be useless for her to have a search made for him.

Some time ago, it is said, Mrs. Beatty asked the aid of the police in forcing her husband to stop paying attention to the Roxbury widow, whose name has not been given out by the authorities.

RENEWS ATTENTIONS.

For a while Beatty stopped keeping company with the woman, but it is said, as soon as the police stopped keeping track of his movements, he again began to appear with her in public.

Although Mrs. Beatty declared after her rescue that she had changed her mind and no longer wished to die, it was decided to send her to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation.

POLICEMEN AND AUTOIST IN GUN DUEL

Car Abandoned by Driver and 3 Other Men After Wild Ride in Charlestown

Policeman McLean and Burns of Charlestown, engaged in pistol duels with the driver of a stolen automobile who piloted the machine down Bunker Hill street at terrific speed, driving with one hand and firing right and left with an automatic pistol that he held in the other.

Neither policeman was hurt, although Burns, who stepped in the path of the car when it reached Treaton street, had a narrow escape from being run over when the apparently crazed driver swerved the machine directly at him and fired point blank at the same time.

Burns stumbled and fell in his efforts to dodge the machine which missed running over him by a foot. Arising, he sent a fusillade after the speeding car, which, witnesses say, carried three men in the rear seat.

McLean was the first to be fired at by the driver. He heard the noise made by the wildly racing car as it dashed towards Sullivan street and stepped out with a command for the driver to stop.

Although fired upon at close range, none of the shots hit McLean, who drew his own gun and began firing at the tires of the fast disappearing machine.

Both policemen followed the car, which was found abandoned in Medford.

FRANC FLUCTUATES ON N. Y. EXCHANGE

New York, March 10.—Widespread fluctuations in the French franc, which rebounded 2¾ points at the opening of today's foreign exchange market, and lost 15 points of its high, reflected the struggle between French governmental and banking interests and continental speculators for control of the currency, according to prominent bankers here.

Heavy buying in the French capital, which was responsible for the early strength of the franc, was offset by subsequent renewal of the "foreign offensive" against the currency, dealers reported. Selling in heavy volume came from German and other continental sources while Paris continued buying on an even large scale.

WINTHROP MAN HELD ON FUGITIVE CHARGE

John P. Murray, head of the Murray Engineering Company of East Boston, was arrested today at his home on Bartlett road, Winthrop, on an indictment charging he is a fugitive from justice.

His arrest followed information from authorities in New York, where he was indicted on the charge of larceny of $7,000 which, it is alleged, he failed to pay the United States government.

He pleaded not guilty in East Boston court and was held in $1,500 until March 20.

SUBDUES PRISONER TRYING TO ESCAPE

Concord, N. H., March 10.—George Hause, alias Joe Shine, held in jail for carrying a gun, attempted to escape today after hitting Officer Fred Marden over the head with a bottle of coffee when Marden brought in the prisoner's breakfast.

Hause was subdued after a battle. Police are endeavoring to connect Hause with the murder of Moses Goldberg, who was beaten to death in his store and robbed of $300 in cash.

The Meritas Made Fabric Body is built on a standard iron-strapped wood frame, and substitutes for wooden or metal panels, a steel wire netting, two layers of wadding, canvas, and an outer covering of Meritas Leather Cloth, a durable, two-ply material specially made for this purpose.

Theatre Guild's Second Play to Draw Smart Throng, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

THE opening of the Theatre Guild's second offering of the season will draw a fashionable throng to the Fine Arts Theatre tomorrow night.

Percy MacKaye's "This Fine-Pretty World" is the play. It is a comedy depicting life in the picturesque mountains of the Blue Grass State, and quite certain to amuse the audience.

A group of prominent matrons are keenly interested in the Theatre Guild, among them Mesdames S. Parker Bremer, Hugh Bancroft, Sidney Homer, William Dana Orcutt, Pierpont Stackpole and Howland Trombley.

THE usual jolly crowd assembled at the Copley-Plaza for the last senior supper dance of the season — everyone seeming quite regretful to have the last of this series come to an end.

Mrs. Ronald Lyman

Mrs. Ronald Lyman, one of the leading spirits for the supper dances, wore white crepe with silver beads, a huge sash of turquoise blue lending just the requisite dash of color to the frock.

Mrs. Gorham Brooks wore a gown of old rose changeable taffeta, most becoming to her brunette coloring.

Distinctly dashing was slender Mrs. Harry Pratt McKean (Bessie Lee) in her very chic frock of black crepe, with its two draperies at the side trailing to the floor. These extremely long draperies, by the way, are quite the latest thing, as odd looking sidewi with figurings of black and lacquer red completed the costume.

Another smart figure in black was "peppy" Mrs. Reggy Foster (Frances Hoar), her frock, relieved by a half-girdle of diamonds in the front and back, the same jewels in her red-gold hair.

Popular Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott was in black velvet and lace. Black, in fact, was rather predominant. Mrs. William Vanderbilt (Emily Davies) and Mrs. Morehead Patterson (Elsie Parsons) bringing a New York atmosphere, were both in black velvet. Mrs. Vanderbilt wore a simple gown in the draped mode, Mrs. Patterson an old-fashioned frock with bertha of white lace.

ALSO selecting the frock reminiscent of grandmother's day was Miss Frances Webster. She wore pink moire threaded with silver, the bertha of ermine.

Mrs. David Maynard wore a gown of black beaded with many loops of jet. Mrs. Lothrop M. Weld was in white satin and lace, a huge shawl of crepe nearly covering her frock. Miss Eliza-beth Beal was in black crepe and lace; Mrs. Daniel de Menocal in almond green, with bands of gold brocade. Mrs. Herbert B. Shaw in white, with tiers of crystals; Miss Eleonora Winslow in pale yellow and Mrs. George von L. Meyer, Jr., in a shimmering affair of white and silver.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE VON L. MEYER

Mr. and Mrs. George von L. Meyer, Jr., of Hamilton, who did much to aid the success of the recent gymkhana given for the Children's Hospital, attended the last senior supper dance.

NEWSPAPER NIGHT AT "GREAT WHITE WAY"

Tonight at the Park Theatre, where the Cosmopolitan production, "The Great White Way," is being shown, will be Newspaper Night. All the workers of the Boston dailies who are not on the night staffs will be the guests of the management.

There is special interest in the story of the photoplay for all concerned with the making of newspapers because so much of the action centres in and around a metropolitan daily.

The leading characters are a champion prize-fighter, a principal dancer of a musical revue and a press agent. The plot development brings them into contact with newspaper dignitaries and the process of making reputations by broadcasting to the world reading material centring on those so prominent in the public mind.

NO ROOM IN HUB FOR KLAN, SAYS CURLEY

"We have no room in this city for any man who holds allegiance to the Ku Klux Klan," declared Mayor Curley, addressing several hundred members of the Foresters of America, of which he is a past chief ranger, in Hibernian Hall, Roxbury.

The meeting was for the purpose of boosting the national convention of Foresters in Boston in May. The Mayor said the city would welcome the Foresters and also the G. A. R. and Elks during their national conventions.

"But we have no room for any man," asserted the Mayor, "who would raise his hand against a fellow citizen, who through accident of birth, differs from him in color or creed. It is un-American.

"In the crisis of war men forget race, creed and color and fought side by side to perpetuate the free government under which we live. Fraternities recognize but one thing—character of the individual. That is why they have attained such great popularity."

Ninety-six Years Old Today

Mrs. S. Elizabeth Yerrinton passed her ninety-sixth birthday at the home of her son, Wendell P. Yerrinton, No. 69 Jason street, Arlington, today. Still in good health, Mrs. Yerrinton, a native of New Shamn, Me., received many congratulations.

LILLIAN GISH IS WORKING ON FILM IN ITALY

Steeped in Fifteenth Century Spirit as She Works at Florence

"THE COLLEGE FAVORITE" is the latest title attained by Lillian Gish, whose splendid work in "The White Sister" is soon to be followed by "Romola," in which she is now being filmed at Florence, Italy, for Inspiration Pictures. A recent examination in English composition at the University of California found Lillian Gish, in "The White Sister," the most popular topic in the students' themes. And this is the more remarkable since the title designated by the instructor was "The Best Movie I Have Ever Seen." Miss Gish sends word from Florence that she is so steeped in the spirit of fifteenth century Florence that she starts involuntarily when she catches sight of a costumed extra on the set and rubs her eyes to see if it is a dream.

ELAINE HAMMERSTEIN, who has won success on the screen when by birth and inheritance she was destined for the speaking stage, has one point on which she is inflexible: she refuses absolutely to be kissed even in a "fade-out," and no amount of questioning avails to divulge her reason. She has even acquired the nickname of "The Great Unkissed" in the studios, and to all pleas for an explanation replies that she is not yet ready to tell why she objects to being photographed with a man's lips touching hers. It should be interesting.

IRVIN S. COBB APPEARING IN 'WHITE WAY'

Irvin S. Cobb, whose humorous writings have won him millions of followers among the reading public, has blossomed forth as a debonair matinee idol of the silver sheet.

The well-known writer appears in "The Great White Way," a picturization of H. C. Witwer's story, "Cain and Mabel," now showing at the Park Theatre.

In his first picture, Mr. Cobb, according to Director E. Mason Hopper, has passed with flying colors, and on the screen is said to register not only 100 per cent. in personal unlehritude, but, in his own opinion, 123 per cent.

Anita Stewart is featured in "The Great White Way," the cast including T. Roy Barnes, Oscar Shaw, Tom Lewis, Harry Watson, Dore Davidson, Olin Howland, Hal Forde, Stanley Forde and Billy Gould.

In addition to the cast a long list of sporting celebrities, literature, artists and well-known Broadway figures appear. A few of the many who appear are Ned Wayburn, H. C. Witwer, J. W. McCurk, Wilmer McCay, Hal Coffman, Harry Hershfield, Damon Runyon, Arthur Brisbane, Nell Brinkley, Fay King, George McManus, "Bugs" Baer, Earle Sande, "Kid" Broad, Johnny Gallagher, Pete Hartley, and Joe Humphries.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

"USE MULSIFIED"

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months.

WALSH FAVORS PAY RAISE FOR POSTAL MEN

Senator Calls Present Scale of Wages Paid Them a "National Disgrace"

Two Democrats and two Republicans high in their party councils in State and nation assured a mass meeting of hundreds of Bostonians employed in various departments of the postoffice that they are entitled to substantial increases in salary and must have them.

The meeting was held in the South End Municipal Building, East Brookline street and Shawmut avenue.

Speakers included United States Senator David I. Walsh, who called the existing wage scale in the Post Office Department a "national disgrace;" Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger of Cambridge, who referred to the Post Office Department deficit of $200,000,000 and intimated that the way out is a jump in Parcel Post rates; Mayor Curley, who objected to the cry that the "revenues of the Government will not permit" the payment of a living wage; and Congressman William S. Greene of Fall River, who, like Mr. Dallinger, stressed the necessity of increased rates for Parcel Post.

FOR JUSTICE.

All four speakers agreed that justice and popular sentiment are on the side of the postal worker.

John A. Kelley presided, as chairman of the joint committee on arrangements, those present representing the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, the Railway Mail Association, the organization of Postoffice Chauffeurs and Mechanics and the organized Postoffice Laborers.

Declaring amidst cheers that his last official act before leaving Washington was to vote for increases in salaries of employes in the postoffice and the customs service, Senator Walsh discussed for a few minutes the increase in the cost of living.

"The figures of the Government itself," said Senator Walsh, "show that from 1913 down to the present minute the average cost of living has jumped in Boston 69 per cent, and in the rest of Massachusetts 80 per cent. In the meantime, especially in 1920, the increase ranged between 90 and 100 per cent.

LIVING COST INCREASE.

"Yet a maximum salary in the Post Office is $1,800—and the cost of living approximately $2,400.

"As your Senator, I protest against existing conditions and demand from our government a reasonable wage.

Congressman Dallinger, who was quite as warmly received, began by expressing his regret that many years ago the cost of carrying and delivering a letter was reduced from 3 to 2 cents. He was certain, he said, that one way out of the present difficulty is to return to a fair and just price for the services performed.

Congressman Greene of Fall River, dean of the New England delegation in the House of Representatives, made a brief address in which he declared that to carry Parcel Post matter at the existing rates is no less than a crime.

"As I see it," declared the Fall River man," there is no reason in the world why these rates should not be jumped at once—to a fair price—and the result answer your just and fair request for better salaries."

East Boston Sick Are Well Served at Maverick Dispensary

TREATING PATIENTS AT MAVERICK DISPENSARY

Nurse Lillian Anderson dressing the hand of Lillian Dame at one of the surgical clinics which are held every day.

Daily Clinics Held Since 1908 Give Medical and Surgical Treatment to All for Very Small Fee

. . . This is the fourteenth of a series of articles which is a sequel to this newspaper's investigation of medical quackery in Greater Boston.

If you are not acquainted with reputable physicians and wish to make sure of obtaining expert advice and fair dealing, the series will show you how to avoid quacks by patronizing Boston's health centres, the best in the country.

Ideally located for the people of the East Boston district is the Maverick Dispensary at No. 18 Chelsea street.

Since 1908 this dispensary has been giving medical and surgical aid to East Boston residents, and if a patient is unable to pay for the services of a family physician, he need not resort to quacks, for here experienced doctors quickly give relief by the payment of a nominal sum, or free, as the patient's purse warrants.

This health unit is the headquarters in the district for all organizations working for the public health, such as the Boston Sanitorium, Community Health Association and other welfare agencies. The station is in charge of Miss Neva E. Dewar, head social worker. There are seven physicians in charge of the different clinics.

25 CENTS A VISIT

A charge of 25 cents per visit is made at all clinics but three, the posture, nerve and nutrition clinics, provided the person is able to pay; this 25 cents pays for all services rendered and all materials furnished, as in the case of the dental clinics, where gold and silver fillings are included in the fee.

The clinics, their hours and days follow:

Medical and surgical, daily at 9 A. M. Dental, daily, 9 A. M. and 1 P. M. Eye and ear, Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 12:30 P. M. Posture, Tuesday and Friday at 9 A. M. Nutrition, Friday, at 3:30 P. M.

Each school nurse has an allotted morning each week to take children to the dental clinic, which is under the direction of Dr. Gordon O. Plummer, and filling, cleaning and extracting is done every six months while the children are in school.

A pre-natal clinic for the mothers of East Boston is also held in this building under the direction of the Community Health Association, Mondays at 9 A. M.

Fifty per cent. of the patients treated here are of Italian parentage. All other nationalities together represent the other 50 per cent.

Sometimes the mothers bring along all of their children to the dispensary at the same time and tell the doctor about their individual ailments. Everything that can be done for the child is done, and if it is a chronic or specific case, it is referred to another agency, such as the City Hospital.

The Habit Classes are for children under six, only. This clinic is for the correction of various bad habits in children before they become too deeply rooted.

Thousands of children are vaccinated here each year. Vaccinations are included in the medical clinic.

Old men and women whose sight has grown dim come here for eye examination. They may be treated free or pay the 25 cents, as they can afford. They can make a small weekly deposit on their glasses, and go away with the assurance that their evening paper will be read with greater comfort in the future.

At the nutrition and posture clinics children are taught to drink milk, instead of tea and coffee, sleep with their windows open and take physical culture exercises. Soon their shoulders straighten out, their chests expand, they put on weight and begin to enjoy health which they never knew before.

Last year, 5,932 patients visited this dispensary, and 17,327 services were rendered to them.

The institution is maintained by the donations of philanthropic persons, and by the small fees received for treatment.

HOLD MEMBER OF CONGRESS IN JAIL

Knutson of Minnesota, Republican Whip in House, Arrested in Virginia

Washington, March 10 (Universal).—The driver of an automobile bearing a license number registered in the name of Harold Knutson, member of Congress from Minnesota, and a Republican whip in the House, was arrested in Arlington County, Va., across the river from Washington, and lodged in jail on a serious and most unusual charge.

When taken into custody by Arlington County authorities, the man was accompanied by a companion who styles himself as Leroy M. Hull, twenty-nine, a War Department clerk, and who lives in the Washington Y. M. C. A. He also was held.

According to the Arlington County authorities, the driver of the car sought to avoid being placed in a jail cell by claiming he was Representative Knutson and entitled to immunity from arrest. The authorities also said that he produced letters and telegrams bearing the name and address of Representative Knutson.

Knutson and Hull were arraigned today after spending the night in jail, and pleaded not guilty. Knutson asked time to arrange for counsel, and this was granted, the court refusing to accept bail. Pleas for "congressional immunity" were turned down.

Representative Knutson is one of the best-known Republican congressmen in Washington. He is serving his fourth term.

The Arlington County officers declared Knutson offered them his automobile and a large sum in cash if they would let him and his companion go.

HOLDS MINISTER IN ARNSTEIN SWINDLE

Youngstown, O., March 10.—Municipal Judge Joseph Heffernan today bound over to the Grand Jury the Rev. Nicholas Podlusky, pastor of a Greek Orthodox church in Warren, O., on a charge of helping Jules (Nicky) Arnstein and Charles ("Punk") Drucker to swindle two men out of $48,000 in an alleged wire-tapping game.

The court declared the alleged wire-tappers could not have operated here for three years "without positive protection" from the police.

In 1891 he was elected to the House of Representatives, serving three terms. He then was elected to the state senate, serving until 1901. For five years he was district attorney of Essex county.

From 1915 to 1919 he served as attorney general. In the latter year he was made chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, which position he has since filled. He is active in Republican party councils of New England. Send him a card or letter of congratulation to his office at the State House.

195 DRUNKS ARE ROUNDED UP OVER WEEK-END

Nearly Twice the Usual Number Gathered in Before Prohibition

One hundred and ninety-five men awoke in cells in downtown Boston today, arrested as drunks over the week-end.

One hundred and twenty-five of these were first offenders and as such were released.

Seventy were taken into municipal court and their cases given varying disposition. Some were fined, some placed on probation, some cases were filed and some offenders were sent to the State Farm.

Fifty-two of the seventy men in court were arrested in the North End. Five of these were suffering from the effects of Jamaica ginger.

In the days before prohibition a hundred arrest over Sunday was a good haul. Police say poison liquor, poison colorings and substitutes such as "jakes" are responsible for the alarming condition.

RED SOX AND SAN ANTONIO PLAY NINE INNINGS TO A TIE

COLD STOPS GAME IN NINTH

By FRED C. LANE

San Antonio, Tex., March 10.—The Red Sox and San Antonio played a decisionless contest at League Park.

According to the rules of baseball the contest should have gone into extra innings, but nine was sufficient, so Manager Lee Fohl and Bob Coleman thought. The score stood thirteen all after nine innings were played.

The weather was more suited for football. That accounts for the score running up into two figures.

Instead of sending the pitchers to the bullpen for warming up practise they were sent to the club house to thaw out along side one of the gas heaters.

Manager Fohl sent in three of his rookie hurlers to nerve to the Bears, and just as fast as they did so, received the same back with presents attached.

San Antonio showed their ability at the bat.

The Sox lent two players, Babe Herman, first sacker, and Danny Fuller, for the initial hassock, to San Antonio, and to them can be attributed the showing made by the Bears.

George Brovold, a new third sacker from the Moline Club of the Three League, contributed his share of the hitting. He poled out five hits in his six trips to the platter. One sailed over the fence. Norman McMillan circled the bases after he slapped one to deep centre.

Dudley Lee, at short field for the first time, opened the third inning with a brilliant stop back of second base. The ball caromed off the initial sack, took a peculiar hop, and landed in the glove of the Denver taxi-owner, who nipped his man at first.

The Sox staggered into the ninth inning. The score was 13 to 6, against them. It looked like curtains for them. A batting rally was staged. It netted seven runs.

Lee was up at bat with two gone in the ninth and Herring on third. Lee popped to Brovold, who put the ball in his pocket after the third out. The game was over. Brovold turned to the clubhouse as did the rest of the players. No alibi was given to the natives, who, by the way, asked for none.

Henriksen Cuts Eagle Squad This Week

A week of practice has weeded out the wheat from the chaff in the Boston College baseball squad, and it is expected that Coach Olaf Henriksen will make the first cut this week.

He declares he has a good line on the material on hand, and cramped quarters at the Commonwealth Armory necessitate the move.

A record squad turned out for this year's Spring practice, a number which was especially enlarged by the appearance of many freshmen. It is hoped that from this class the successors to the three positions open on the team may be picked.

Gus Whelan will be unable to hold down first base on account of an injury which he suffered during last Summer's vacation. As a consequence, one of the heaviest hitters of the squad will not be available. B. C. is essentially a heavy hitting aggregation, and it is a problem to find a man who will not disrupt the line of sluggers.

From all indications, Henriksen will shift Captain Tommy Phillips to the initial sack. Phillips and Steve Patten, pitcher, tried out this position all last week, and both look good there.

Bresnahan, another member of last season's squad is also candidate for the centre sack, but the better hitter probably will decide the place as it is a toss-up when one considers fielding ability.

Bill Cronin is pretty sure to regain his old berth at the hot corner. Third was a new position to the star halfback last year, but he mastered the tricks of the trade and before the middle of the season started to pile up a record number of assists.

Short and second still seem to be bones of contention among the subs and the regulars. It is almost improbable, however, that Sonny Foley, lead-off man will be docked in place of either Paul Myron or Tom McInire of last year's substitute squad, or the two newcomers, Bagley and Finnegan.

Bagley is from B. C. High, and played short for the Maroon and Gold Juniors last year, while "Jap" Finnegan was captain of the Latin team, and short on the All-Scholastic nine. Both are natural all-round ball players.

Tommy Phillips

Right field, left vacant by the graduation of Tony Comerford, one of the heaviest hitters of last year's squad, will probably be filled by Pete Day, late of English High.

It is also possible that Steve Patten, should he not land the first base position, may be shifted to the field. Steve is a pitcher by trade but has also played these two other positions to some extent. He is the most natural hitter on the squad, and Henriksen hates to be forced to keep him on the bench.

Overcoats "too much bother"—so REM had bad coughs to work on

When the "gang" hollers outside to "hurry up and c'mon out," boys don't stop to get well wrapped up, even on a cold winter's night.

And the next thing a mother knows they're down with nasty coughs and colds. That was the way with Mrs. Anna Dundore's boys, 1320 Melrose St., Chicago, as she herself tells it:

"Both my boys, Leslie and Raymond, caught cold at the same time this winter. They will go out without their coats like boys do. Both had nasty coughs that kept them coughing almost all the time. When one wasn't coughing the other was, and at night their coughs would keep them awake several hours after they were in bed.

"I tried different sorts of medicine for them, but nothing stopped their coughs till we got REM. It only took 3 or 4 doses of it to fix them up. Their coughs left them like magic.

"My husband tried REM for a cough he had during the winter, but it didn't seem to help him much. It did the work for the children, though. I wouldn't be without it."

REM'S quick action in so many cases is largely due to a special ingredient (too expensive for old-style, slower-acting cough syrups) that makes REM cling to your throat as it is swallowed. And there it quickly begins its work of quieting the cough.

What's more, REM is pleasant to take. Ask your druggist for it and accept no other—you can tell REM by the blue package with the round orange label.

You can have your money back if you want it—but you won't!

Triple A Blows Off Cover of Pro Ring

The Armory A. A. will blow the cover off the two weeks' resting period of the professional ring game in Boston, tomorrow night, when Abe Friedman mingles in the main bout with Newport Spencer Gardner.

GARDNER AND FRIEDMAN IN BANTAM CLASSIC AT TRIPLE A

AMATEURS BOX FOR CASEYS

By JACK CONWAY

The boxing game comes out of the moth balls this week. It will make an attempt to keep pace with the Teapot Dome amusement reel and other choice news items.

Abe Friedman, New England bantamweight champion, and Spencer Gardner of Newport, R. I., will let the big rockets blaze into the sky at the grand opening which will take place under the direction of the Armory A. A. at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night.

QUARREL BETWEEN TWO OF THE BEST MIDGETS.

It will be a quarrel between two of the leading midget fighters in this country. For the past five years Friedman has been swapping blows with the leading bantamweights. He has made more money than would have been the case if he had decided to sell clothes and suits or be a diamond merchant. Great is the earning power of a pair of nimble feet and a fast moving brain.

Gardner, more youthful than Friedman, has also been coming to the front at a torrid clip. He is twenty-two years old, aggressive and a heavy socker.

It will be the third time Gardner and Friedman have met. Abe grabbed the decision in the first skirmish, Gardner in the second.

Which young man will finish out front in the "rubber?"

ABE FRIEDMAN REFUSED TO CHANGE HIS NAME

Friedman, like Benny Leonard, is a Jew. He has proved that BRAINS win in the ring as well as in banking, medicine or at the law. More important, Friedman is very proud of the fact he is a Jew. When Abe first started boxing in New England, it was suggested that he assume a ring name other than his own.

"Abe Friedman is too Jewish," said one promoter.

"I shall win fame in the ring as Abe Friedman or I shall quit" was the reply of the brilliant little bantamweight.

And he has. He displayed the same spirit that has enabled the Jews to become such a powerful and important force in the every day life of America.

The man who is not proud of his ancestry cannot gain real success at anything. A person who condemns anybody on account of his ancestry is not worthy of the name American.

Louis Firpo received a taming from Spalla, the Spanish fighter. He took Firpo fourteen rounds to knock out a third rate heavyweight. Naturally this has injured his ring standing.

We do not believe the Firpo who fought Spalla was 60 per cent. of the fighter who clashed with Dempsey. The later gave Firpo such a terrific body punching that he has slowed up the South American.

It will be remembered that Georges Carpentier was never very good as a fighter after Dempsey got through with him. Possibly the American "Tiger Man" has also ruined Firpo.

AMATEUR BOXERS CLASH AT SOMERVILLE TONIGHT

Bunker Hill Council, K. of C., will stage a big amateur boxing show at Roughan's Hall, Charlestown tonight. The best of the simon-pures will be seen in action. The committee in charge of the tournament announce that a large entry list has been received. It will be midnight before this brilliant show ends.

There will not be any boxing show at Lynn tonight as a result of the injury of Nate Siegel. Nate twisted a ligament in his back while training for his tussle with Avilla.

COWETTE AND BYRON CLASH AT MANCHESTER.

Jim MacDonald has Bernie Cowette of Manchester, N. H., battling Sailor Byron, New England lightweight champion, at Manchester tonight. The distance is ten rounds. MacDonald informs us that Cowette is one of the most promising boys in the lightweight class. He is very liable to toss Byron for a loss, according to MacDonald. Cowette has won eleven of his twenty bouts by a knockout.

George Robinson, veteran Cambridge middleweight, is training again after a long layoff which was made necessary by an injured arm. Robinson will begin a new ring campaign when he clashes with Tiger Flowers at Atlanta, Ga. on March 14. Flowers is one of the best of our brave middleweights.

Joe St. Hillaire of Somersworth, N. H., will have Gunboat Jacks of Lawrence as an opponent in a ten-round frolic at Portsmouth, N. H. on March 20. Many Portsmouth fans seem to think Jacks will kayo Hillaire. These gentlemen don't realize what a fine boxer St. Hillaire is.

Pat McCarthy, Roxbury lightheavyweight, has resumed training. Pat has been offered a match with Paul Berlenbach at a Boston club. The question of the division of the purse is the only hitch to the proposed bout.

Young Harko, classy New Hampshire bantamweight, will probably be seen in a Boston ring shortly. Harko recently walloped Sheppard. Harko first attracted attention boxing as an amateur at the Dilboy Post shows in Somerville. Charley Mooney and Jimmy Murphy tipped us on Harko a year ago. The kid has "arrived."

Incidentally Jimmy Murphy, who used to write sports but who now talks about Socrates and Alexander the Great with the learned news editors, asks:

"Aren't there any more battle royals? I recently saw such an affair advertised for a private smoker. If such things are legal for smokers, why not let the colored boys do their stuff at the regular shows? They give action and create laughter. Merriment relieves nerve strain which is what the tired business man needs."

We always got a laugh out of battle royals, but we think the Boxing Commission is wise in banning them. Massachusetts legalized boxing, not free-for-all punching matches rolled up with comedy. Perhaps some evening we shall sip Kyan's of Providence, accompanied by Jimmy Murphy, and then get a check out of a battle royal.

POLISH RIVALS WILL BATTLE ON MAT

Just when Stanley Stasiak started to wrestle dates back sixteen years or more. Over in Kalits, Poland, on a farm a bout that many years ago one Josef Stasiak, a tall Pole, weighing around 325 pounds, and one of his neighbors were having a little visit.

Stanley Stasiak.

They got a little more friendly as the day progressed mainly through the contents poured from a jug they had stored in the barn.

Finally they argued about the respective merits of their two sons who were playing in the yard. The son of Josef Stasiak was eleven years old and a good sized husky boy. The son of his friend was fourteen years old and somewhat heavier than the other boy but not quite as tall.

The boys were brought together and told to wrestle their best for the honor of their family and to the loser was promised a good whipping from his father. You can rest assured that the contest that followed was a real battle and it lasted over twenty minutes.

The winner was the son of Josef Stasiak and was taken to town as a token of his victory and given a good supper and sent to a show. The boy's name was Stanley and while he didn't take up wrestling as a profession until twelve years later he will always remember his first real encounter where he had a lot at stake.

Next Thursday night at the Grand Opera House this same Stanley Stasiak will again defend the honor of his family in a match for the Polish wrestling championship of the world against Wladek Zbyszko in what should be the greatest match of the season. It will be the greatest match of Stasiak's entire career. He is in wonderful shape and ready to put up the battle of his life.

Frank Judson, the ex-Harvard coach, will meet Jack Albright in a one-fall contest, while George Kotsonaros, the Greek champion, will tackle Savage Tooles in another one-fall bout. Kotsonaros is especially anxious to meet Stasiak in a finish match for the chance to meet Lewis in a return bout.

REAL PRACTICE FOR BRAVES STARTS

By NICK FLATLEY.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 10.—The Braves get down to real practice business this week with the first of the large league practice games just over the horizon. Two workouts a day were on the program, general stuff in the morning, a scrub game in the afternoon.

Larry Benton

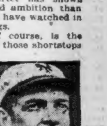
All the players are in what you might call good shape. Even Leffler's broken nose is almost a memory. Pitchers Lansing and Benton report slight soreness in their wings. Lansing is a doubtful quantity at best, but Benton's bother is merely temporary.

Manager Bancroft is satisfied perfectly with things as they have gone and it's apparent that his performers are all for him. "Banny," a player himself, doesn't make anybody work too long and as near as I can with the boys he sees to it that all hands do their bit.

He has paid a lot of attention to infield work and has a combination at work now that will be somewhat of a revelation to Braves fans if nothing happens within the next month or so.

The regular quartet has shown more real speed and ambition than any Brave array we have watched in the past few Springs.

The manager, of course, is the answer. He's one of those shortstops who happens once in a generation or so, a streak in the field and a natural born fighter. We are not proclaiming that the Tribe will have one of baseball's greatest infields, but it certainly does look as if the grounder grabbers would be fully good enough to haul the team up the ladder, provided the rest of the machine functions.



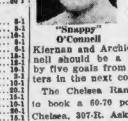
Pres. Mathewson

President Christy Mathewson is among those present now, and through baseball man that he is, admits that the team looks surprisingly good for the amount of time it has been here. He doesn't hesitate to say that the Florida climate must be good for training if it can knock a squad into condition in the course of a week.

And Matty cracked that one despite a dreary desolate rainy Sunday for all the world like one of those stormy early April days in Boston. The sun is always supposed to shine here, but it took a real vacation. It didn't make any difference, however, in a baseball gathering of most of the famous men in this part of the world.

Basketball Notes

The Park A. A. and the West End Council, K. of C., will meet tonight in the second of the three-game series for the basketball title of the West End.



"Snappy" O'Connell

The first game went to the Knights after a battle that had the fans on their feet from the start and only after a whirlwind finish were the Knights able to come out on top.

The Park A. A. quintet, however, are out to even things up in the second game, and are determined that the Knights will not repeat. With their lineup, of Deac Finn, Tacks Connell, Henry Kiley, Snappy O'Connell, Charley Melnick and Johnny Donnelly, they should make things decidedly interesting.

The Knights will use their regular lineup of Walter Costello, Dan Silva, Hughie Dolan, Hughie Kiernan and Archie McDonald, and the battle between Silva and Connell should be a hummer. In that contest Silva outscored Connell by five goals from the floor to two, and Tacks is out to even up matters in the next contest, so the fans are assured of a great game.

NEWTON GIRL IS SHOT BY MAN, WHO KILLS SELF

Shoemaker Dies in Hospital After Seeking to End Life of 16-Year-Old Victim

Marietta Bianchi, 16 years old and until recently a student in the Newton High School, was shot through the head by Francisco Vissochi, a lodger in her home at No. 201 Adams street, Newton, while she was writing a letter. She will recover, according to officials of the Newton Hospital.

Vissochi turned his automatic on his own head after he fired two shots at the girl he loved. He died at the Newton Hospital. He is twenty-seven years old and shot her, according to her father, because she spurned him, telling him she was too young to be his wife. One of the shots pierced the hand of the girl as she raised it to protect herself, while cringing in fear before Vissochi's weapon.

Fred Bianchi, seven, the wounded girl's brother, and Antoinette Dorando, four, a neighbor's child, were playing in the kitchen when Vissochi came up from the cellar brandishing his weapon. His eyes were bloodshot and his hair rumpled up as he turned the weapon on the children and ordered them out of the room with a threat to kill them both.

Then came the shots which brought the girl's relatives running into the room and caused them to send in a hurry call for an ambulance.

Vissochi, who was a shoemaker, had been living with the Bianchis for about a year.

RUNNERS PROTECTED BY FORMER OFFICIAL

Atlantic City, N. J., March 10.—Public warning of a "Combination" offering protection to rum runners who are landing whiskey by boat was made in a statement by Prosecutor Louis A. Repetto. He said.

"This combination is alleged to be collecting $3 per case and the man most prominently mentioned in these reports, who is supposed to be acting as a sort of pilot and collecting this protection money, was recently connected with this office as a county detective."

CABINET APPROVES MINCARE TAX PLAN

Rome, March 10.—In a three-hours' session the French Cabinet unanimously approved Premier Poincare's policy of stabilizing the government's fate upon the financial reform measures adopted by the Senate. Finance Minister Peretti de la Rocca, which are now under examination by the Senate Finance Committee. Rejection of vital parts of these measures will lead to immediate resignation by the Cabinet. Quick action is urged because of growing alarm among bankers over the fall of the franc.

FILM SHOWS INSIDE OF VESUVIUS CRATER

For the first time in history an airplane has actually descended into the crater of Vesuvius and actually flown about inside. This remarkable feat has been accomplished by Umbert Romagnoli, daring motion picture cameraman, at the risk of his life. And to make the feat even more thrilling Romagnoli used a seaplane.

For seven minutes, Romagnoli piloted by Commandante Coppola, of the Italian Navy, flew about within the crater and just above the volcanic cone from which vast clouds of smoke and poisonous gases poured forth. Both Romagnoli and his pilot wore gas masks.

The picture that Romagnoli secured is one of the most remarkable ever taken, and shows what the center of Vesuvius looks like—inside!

BEAD NECKLACE MARKS WHO BABY IS

Boston Hospital Method of Identifying Infants Is Big Success

You can't lose 'em in Boston!

There's several hundred new ones every day—as much alike as eggs in a basket—but a Cohen never gets a Sullivan.

New York's "Nino Natal Chain" the new invention for marking newly arrived babies which has Gotham by the ears, doesn't make the Boston hospitals bat an eyelash.

Boston has introduced something better.

On the table in the glistening white room where the small bundle of humanity will open its eyes is a string of beads. They are blue and white, the blue ones in the center with letters carved upon them.

A minute after the infant is born the doctor's fingers have placed the necklace upon its neck and fastened it in back with a metal tag which cannot be undone. The baby's name is on him to stay—the necklace remains on until he leaves the hospital.

"And then, if it's the first baby in the family," laughs Sister Vincent at the Carney Hospital, "the mother buys the little necklace and tucks it away with the christening dress and the first shoes."

Just one Boston hospital differs from this method.

At a Framingham factory they make little linen tags for the daily crop of citizens at the Boston Lying In Hospital. The tag is an inch long and a half inch wide. The name and time of birth are marked on it and a blue ribbon is used for the girl baby and pink for the boy.

Paris Birth-Rate Lowest of Any Big City in World

Paris, March 10.—Statistics just published show that Paris has the lowest birth-rate of any large city in the world.

Ever since the war, with the exception of the year 1920, births in Paris have been steadily diminishing. Nearly 1,000 children less were born in the capital in 1923 than in 1922.

In the ten largest French cities births fell last year by sixteen hundred and by 10,000 since 1921.

HUB HONORS PAT MORAN IN DEATH

Fans Place Wreath on Casket as Body Arrives in the South Station

A tiny band of Boston baseball fans, with an enormous wreath of American Beauty roses, paid Hub fandom's homage to "a great guy" when the body of Pat Moran, late manager of the Cincinnati "Reds," arrived today at the South Station from Florida.

The popular baseball manager was on his last journey "home" to Fitchburg.

As the "Everglades Special" rolled into the station up from the Southland where Moran died in his baseball harness, Standish Wilcox, secretary to Mayor Curley; John S. Dooley, John W. Campbell, Edward McGonigle, Peter J. Carey and John A. Dooley, familiar figures at diamond battles, placed the beautiful wreath upon the casket and then stood back, with heads uncovered.

The manager's widow, in heavy mourning and overcome with grief, stepped from the train, leaning heavily on Tom Moran, brother of the late leader.

Behind came the two Moran sons, youths of twelve and ten, apparently not fully aware of the great sorrow that has come upon the Moran family and the baseball world.

With the two boys were Ivy Wingo, "Reds" catcher, and his battery mate, George Harper, both of whom accompanied the body from the training camp in Florida to be representatives of the "Reds" players at the funeral tomorrow in Fitchburg.

Both diamond warriors showed their grief. The body was transferred to a Framingham train and the mourning group boarded this train.

With them on this train were Edward Breen and Joseph Perrault, Fitchburg citizens, who came down to meet the Everglades Special, and Fred Mitchell of the Boston Braves and William O'Kane of the Red Sox.

At Framingham the entire party transferred to a Fitchburg train on the final leg of the journey.

SETTLEMENT OF MEMAL ROW NEAR

Geneva, March 10 (A.P.)—Employing all his skill to secure an equitable settlement of the Memel controversy, which is held to be dangerous to the security of northern Europe, Norman H. Davis of New York has persuaded the Lithuanians to accept a convention regulating the future administration of the former German territory. Mr. Davis is head of the League of Nations commission which has considered the Memel problem. Lithuania maintains she is still in a state of war with Poland over the Vilna question, but has agreed to recognize Poland's privileges on the River Niemen.

SOVIET RECOGNITION DENIED BY VATICAN

Rome, March 10.—Vatican authorities declared today there was no foundation for the report that the Vatican was about to acknowledge the Soviet government. It was asserted that such an understanding had not been asked for and would be unwelcome to the Soviets.

The Vatican has only such contact with Russia as is necessary to carry out its mission of mercy toward Russian Catholics and, as far as possible, to alleviate the terrible conditions under which they live, it was said.

BEATS UP HIS BRIDE; APPEALS JAIL TERM

William E. Proctor of Hemenway street, Back Bay, charged with assault and battery on Mrs. Marie Proctor, his bride of five weeks, was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction by Judge Hayden in Roxbury court today. He appealed and was held in $1,000. The alleged assault followed an argument in their home. Proctor was arrested by Special Officer Hankins of Station 14.

HUNT MEMBER OF CABINET AS IRISH REBEL

Minister of Commerce Sought in Connection With the Army Mutiny

By DANIEL O'CONNELL

Dublin, March 10 (I.N.S.)—Minister of Commerce McGrath's home was raided today by troops in connection with the attempted mutiny in the Free State army.

Dublin, March 10 (A.P.).—The extent of the mutiny in the ranks of the national army apparently is more serious than at first supposed, it is stated at army headquarters.

Several responsible officers absconded at Templemore, and a quantity of arms and ammunition is missing. A new garrison was sent to the post, and the situation is now normal. There was a similar incident at the Formanstown camp.

Three officers decamped from the Baldonnel airdrome, with three Lewis guns, and at Roscommon two officers "were seduced from allegiance" and left with arms and ammunition. Twenty-five men broke barracks at Clonmel and are missing. They are believed to have been implicated in the disappearance of the arms from Templemore.

Thomas Johnson, chairman of the Labor party, said the Laborite would resist every attempt to set up a military dictatorship or to establish any authority within the army over the army. They would insist so far as possible on maintaining the control of the military officers.

Senator O'Farrell appealed to all sane parties in the country to assist the government in bringing home to those responsible for the mutiny that a military servant was not a master of civil power.

NAME RECEIVERS IN BROKERAGE CRASH

J. Weston Allen, former State Attorney General, Charles Curtis, former special assistant U. S. District Attorney, and Bartholomew A. Brickley, Jr., receivers for G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc., were appointed today as temporary receivers for Withington & Co., a Redmond subsidiary.

The appointment was made by Judge Morton in U. S. District Court on petition of five creditors who filed bankruptcy proceedings several days ago against Warren N. Withington, head of the concern.

Judge Morton announced that the receivers named would act for Withington & Co. "until the situation is clarified."

LIMITED TELEGRAPH LIABILITIES UPHELD

Washington, March 10.—Liabilities limitations fixed by telegraph companies in the transmission of messages were today sustained by the Supreme Court.

That provision of the Kansas Industrial court act which prohibits strikes by coal miners must stand or fall on the decision of the Kansas courts, the Supreme Court so held today in the case of August Dorchy. The decision of the lower Federal court was reversed.

EARLY ACTION URGED ON NEW BONUS BILL

Washington, March 10.—The new soldier bonus bill went into the hands of the House sub-committee today for the finishing touches. With a report of the measure to the House by Wednesday in prospect, Chairman Green has announced he will seek a special rule making it immediately in order.

The form of the paid-up life insurance policy provision, the basis of the new measure, was taken up by the sub-committee. Several proposals for such a provision have been presented, but none agreed upon.

ESKIMOS EXECUTED FOR POLICE MURDER

Fairbanks, Alaska, March 10.—Far north of civilization two Eskimos have paid the penalty for murder. They were hanged at Herschel Island for the murder of Corporal Dusk of the Mounted Police, and Otto Binder, a white trader.

Sergeant Thorne of the Mounted Police, who sprung the trap that sent the Eskimos to their death, said they died without sign of fear or remorse and made speeches from the scaffold declaring the Mounted Police were enemies of their people. They were Alik Omiak and Esquimo Tetamangma.

18 BODIES ARE RECOVERED IN MINE BLAST

Believe All Trapped in Utah Tragedy Dead; Rescue Parties Enter Shaft

Castle Gate, Utah, March 10 (A.P.).—Eighteen bodies of miners killed Saturday when a series of explosions virtually destroyed mine No. 2 of the Utah Fuel Company and entombed 175 men had been brought out early today and all available trucks were pressed into service upon reports that many bodies had been found and would be brought to the surface.

Indications were that none of the miners in the workings had escaped.

Seventeen rescue crews made rapid progress during the night in exploration of the mine entries.

As a result hope virtually was abandoned by company officials that any of the entombed men would be found alive.

During the night the rescue crews proceeded approximately 2,500 feet in the escapeway portal, from where all rescue work is carried on, and extinguished a smouldering fire that had been burning all day. There were no signs of additional fires anywhere in the mine.

YOUTH OF 14 CAUGHT IN HOME

Elder Brother Later Arrested for String of Leominster Robberies

Leominster, March 10.—A fourteen-year-old boy, who, for the past week, has been burglarizing houses here was arrested after a particularly daring robbery at the home of Mrs. Frederick L. Perry, No. 73 Orchard street.

He gave his name as John P. Legere.

The boy entered the Perry home in broad daylight, flourishing a revolver, and ordered Mrs. Perry to throw up her hands, after which he calmly ransacked the house. Mrs. Perry, disregarding the injunction to remain with her hands in the air, rushed to a telephone, called the police and the boy was arrested.

Shortly after the arrest, the police arrested his twenty-six-year-old brother, William L. Legere, on the charge of receiving stolen goods. In the home of the older brother about $300 of plunder was received, this stuff having been stolen by the youngster in the past seven days, it is said.

The boy came here about a week ago from Springfield. Since then robberies have been occurring with regularity. The homes entered were generally those of the better class and the loot taken included jewelry, cameras, watches and wearing apparel.

Just before Mrs. Perry was held up, the home of City Councillor Winthrop M. Mayo at No. 37 Orchard street was entered and a quantity of plunder taken. Mrs. Mayo saw the thief leaving and later identified him as Legere.

The residences of Albert L. Gardner, No. 163 Third street; William D. Dresser, No. 13 Columbia street; City Councillor Frederick T. Platt, No. 51 Grove avenue; William Stebbins, No. 199 Water street, and William Belleveau, No. 79 Howard street also were entered, as was the store of Antonio Fiorio, No. 87 Mechanic street.

Boil sugar and water until it threads. Add grated rind and orange juice, cover and keep warm one hour; then cool. Beat cream until stiff and add, gradually, the orange syrup. Cut oranges in halves, crosswise, and remove pulp and separate into small pieces. Pour juice from the two oranges into a mould; then put in alternate layers of cream and orange pulp until mould is filled to overflowing. Adjust cover, pack in salt and ice, using equal parts, and let stand two hours.

Cover closely and bake two hours, turning after the first hour. Serve on platter and surround with sauce.

FADS OF FASHION

By Mildred Ash

FROM Tip to Toe—from the tip of her plain satin pump to the top of her perfectly waved head, brown is the rage. The most exquisite bandeaux for evening wear is of brown maline or net, elaborately studded with a dainty design of sparkling rhinestones.

More "Mocha" Models are seen in dinner frocks, than ever before. In fact, next to black, it seems to be the favorite shade for the dress and semi-dress costumes of women who dress with dignity and good taste.

An Icy Stare cannot look quite as cold as the little crystal cubes that so closely resemble cakes of ice. The larger these blocks are cut, the smarter the necklaces and earrings fashioned from them. Frequently these beads, in varying sizes, are combined with round crystal or pearl beads. Crystal bracelets are also very popular at Southern resorts.

Dyeing for Fashing—the laces are assuming shades identical with the dancing frocks that they trim. Not only is this done with chiffon or silk crepe dresses, but also with lingerie ones of sheer batiste or voile or of crisp organdie.

Women have tried and still try to perform "wonders" with their lipsticks—to achieve "startling" effects. But attempts to improve on nature in this respect are usually more startling than beautiful. Make-up undoubtedly has its place and usefulness. But if you must use a lipstick, do so with discretion. Do not rob yourself of every trace of individuality by transforming the "character curves" of your lips into a conventional, artificial, rosebud pattern.

Nature is a wise artist when it comes to the fashioning of beautiful women. Go out into the sunshine and fresh air and walk and walk. Eat simple, natural foods. Sleep—and during normal hours for sleep—in a room where darkness and fresh air have full sway. Bathe freely. Fill your lungs with fresh air at all times.

Deceiving Signs

DRAWN BY WALT VAN ARSDALE

Copyright, 1923, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. 12-6

NO doubt Jack Frost is very much pleased, and all the whistling, humming out-of-doors is his cry of victory. For upon the very window pane he carefully painted white, a girl—so fair and lovely all the gods and elements would wish her for their own—writes his name.

But Jack Frost is old and of the school of long ago. What does he know of modern science—psycho-analysis and the rest? This girl, whose heart he fancies he has won, cannot feel the wintry blast or see the steel-gray sky. Jack? Yes, the scientists will concede she's thinking of one so named. But when by her side Dicky-bird warbles a tuneful song and a crackling fire protects her from the cold, will she not think of a gentler Jack —who would take her heart, but not the world, by storm?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney

Boston Health Commissioner.

ACUTE poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis, is an infectious and communicable disease. While poliomyelitis is admittedly not as acutely contagious as scarlet fever or measles, its serious nature amply justifies energetic and thorough measures in attempts at control.

Dr. Mahoney

The disease is eminently one of childhood, but adults are also frequently affected.

Children in the family must not be allowed to attend school until they have received a certificate from the Health Department.

The room used by the patient should be cleared free from furniture as possible. Carpets and hangings should be removed before the patient is placed in the room.

Toys and books used by the sick person should be thoroughly disinfected or destroyed after recovery or death. The sick room should be well aired several times daily.

When practicable, one attendant should take entire care of the patient, and no one else beside the physician should be allowed to enter the room. The attendant should have no communication with the rest of the family. Visitors must not be admitted to the apartment as long as the case is quarantined. The room occupied by the patient should be screened. Cats, dogs and other animals should be excluded.

Discharges from the nose and mouth of the patient should be received on a handkerchief or cloths which should at once be burned or immersed in a 5 per cent. solution of carbolic acid. This solution prepared by dissolving three ounces of pure carbolic acid in one gallon of hot water.

All clothes, bed linen and personal clothing which have come in contact in any way with the sick person should immediately be immersed in the carbolic solution before removal from the room. They should be soaked for two or three hours and may then be removed from the room and boiled in water or soapsuds for one-quarter of an hour.

Surfaces of any kind soiled with the discharges should be immediately washed with the carbolic solution.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

I am fifty-one. Five years ago I had the flu and have not felt good for two years. I had a pain in the pit of the stomach and now 100 pounds in three weeks. I have the pain all the time. I am nervous and have a bad cough.

C. A.

I would advise you to see your doctor.

What causes gas on the stomach after eating? Is it dangerous? I have heartburn after every meal and have had it for three years.

T. K.

Limit your sweets and starchy foods and see that your bowels move every day. Do not eat too much or too fast.

Does one have to have tuberculosis to spit up blood? Would any trouble other than that cause it?

R. D.

Spitting blood does not necessarily mean tuberculosis. Other diseases, and also heart disease, may cause similar results.

I have been troubled with a swelling on my neck for a year and a half. It comes every three or four months; sometimes it breaks, and sometimes there is bad at it. When it breaks, there is a pus, like water, and then it does not. Recently three or four small swellings with no heads came on the back of my neck, and they make me feverish. My head fills up, and I sweat that night. Last day I am sick and cannot work. A doctor a year ago said it was a blind gall and cut it but it still bothers me.

W. M.

The description of you trouble leads me to believe that you are suffering from a carbuncle. Have it looked, and ask the doctor for treatments with an autogenous vaccine.

What is the cause of pneumonia. Would getting a chill be apt to cause an attack?

J. T. C.

The disease is due to a germ known as the pneumococcus. It is a constant inhabitant of the throats of healthy people and does no harm until the resistance is lowered by disease, lack of food or exhaustion due to severe physical exercise. Chilling of the body when overheated may bring on an attack. Many elderly persons suffering from chronic diseases die from pneumonia, the disease being known as "terminal pneumonia."

Is whooping cough a contagious disease? What are the symptoms?

F. L. H.

Whooping cough is a contagious disease characterized by an inflammation of the nose, throat and bronchial tubes, associated with a peculiar spasmodic cough, ending in a long, drawn out inspiration accompanied by a sound known as a "whoop." It is caused by a germ present in the discharges from the nose and mouth.

I am twenty-two years old and weigh 185 pounds. Have five feet four inches in height. I could sleep twelve hours daily. Have been prescribed a cure cure for my stomach. I have got what one would call a large appetite, but have dieted and starved and can still fat.

E. M. G.

Diet, exercise, and the only cure cure. Limit your meals, especially in sweets, starches and fats, and exercise, considerably. There are no drugs of value for this condition.

Five years ago I had a bad attack of the flu, pneumonia and bloosuphs. Was laid up four months, and it left me a pain at the bottom of my spine. Sometimes it comes from one side, sometimes from the other, and it goes away for a short time. Have had some physical examinations, but the doctors appear find anything the matter with me. I exercise, should further on. If not, however, that your troubles are nervous in type.

HINTS ABOUT YOUR BEAUTY

By Maria Jeritza

"EVERY girl is pretty when she smiles," a wise woman said. And, undoubtedly, it is true that a face lighted by a smile that is spontaneous, kindly and genuine cannot be less than charming.

This smile of beauty is far more than a perfunctory upward curve of the lips. The heart from which it springs is filled with kindly good-will. The woman with a captivating smile has banished every ugly emotion—hatred and fear, for instance—from her consciousness by filling her mind full of active friendliness, the joy of life and an eager desire to serve.

She does not try to smile. Her good-will irresistibly finds expression in eyes that sparkle and lips that curve upward.

One of the most refreshing and heart-gladdening experiences of life is to be greeted with this friendly, sympathetic, genuinely happy smile.

Lips are always lovely when they are kindly and smiling. And the mouth that smiles often and easily is gradually transformed into lines of beauty.

There is no recipe for a lovely mouth as unfailing as happy thoughts. Operations have been performed to make a mouth over into a conventional rosebud with the result that the lips could no longer relax into a smile. Could any fate be more pitiful, more disastrous to charm?

Women have tried and still try to perform "wonders" with their lipsticks—to achieve "startling" effects. But attempts to improve on nature in this respect are usually more startling than beautiful. Make-up undoubtedly has its place and usefulness. But if you

PARIS SENDS NEW IDEAS

Paris, France—Two suits from the Spring collection of O'Rossan, the tailor, are sketched. At the left is a model in which a plain and a fancy woven fabric are combined. Both are tan, the foundation of each a loose basket-weave. The jacket is made of the fantaisie, with a scarf and cape which are detachable, the latter made of the plain material. The cape may be buttoned down at the lowe edge on each side. A skirt of plain fabric, slashed at the front from belt to hem, buttons down its entire length.

The severely tailored model on the right is made of lightweight suiting in striped tan and brown shades. Quite box-like and straight in line is the little jacket, fastening with one big button and boasting three pockets. A deep fold at the left side of the skirt makes walking a pleasure, but if one wishes, it may be buttoned down to give a narrow, trim silhouette.

CHICKIE

The Beautiful, but Bluntly Honest Story of a Boston Girl

By ELENORE MEHERIN

Seething Life of a Lovely Boston Girl of This Strange Today

"ALL that prevents a lot of happy, kind things——" Chickie smiled. "Well, Mr. Munson, if you're so anxious to give some poor working girl like me all that fun, why don't you pick out one and send her a diamond tiara, anonymous like?"

Latte glints came into his flashing eyes. "You don't believe me. I'll show you that I'm in earnest. I mean to show you that, Chickie."

Later, when they were settled back in the limousine he put his arm about her. "You like me, Chickie?"

"Yes—"

"You know you mean a lot—everything—to me?"

"No."

"You do too. I'm telling you the truth. I'd love to do some fine, pleasant things for you—give you a lot of joy. Oh, dear!" He had to stop, for hands pressed in his. He was leaning down, his face came nearer.

She moved back with a start. "No—don't!"

"Oh, kid, don't you know—It's a matter of the whole you. I love you. I want you. Oh, you dear. Look up at me, please. Put your arms around me. I want it so."

She sat rigid against him a white child thing of fear coiled in her heart. Suddenly she covered her face and cried. His arms came in as though he were shot. He leaned forward and when it was something to the chauffeur. It took Chickie's hands gently, waiting her with hot intent eyes. "Why did you cry, Chickie?"

She answered in a very low tone: "I didn't cry."

Didn't Love Her

"Why did you cover your face then?"

"I don't know—everything—all at once. Oh, I didn't want you to say that. You don't love me. I know it. You only say that. It spoils everything."

He pressed her hands against his knee. Suddenly he leaned down, forcing her head up. "I love you, Chickie—terribly. I want you. I'd give the world to have you put your arms about me. I want that. I want it! Oh, you dear—" The red mouth curved in a warm, flashing smile, his eyes glowed softly into hers: "Chickie—kiss me—just once—let me—"

She put her hand up between them. She sat perfectly still, staring at him, his lips moving over her face. He caught both her wrists, drawing her arms down in a sudden violence. His eyes alight, swept over her face. Hold it like so, he murmured: "I love you—you don't know—you little white darling—pitiful——"

She closed her eyes—hearing his breath. Presently he freed her hands. He looked at her smiling, quiet, exultant. "Chickie, dear, I couldn't help that. It's the way you look. I'd give the world——"

"Don't say it again—please——"

"But I would. I will—you dear —wait—I mean it—I love you"

He's Persistent

When he left her at the door he leaned down and whispered in her ear, "I love you—you dear!"

She went into her room and began undressing in a swift, breathless excitement. The acuteness of her sensations, the half terrified thrill surprised and horrified her. She looked at her hands, feeling vividly the movement of his lips.

Her thought was submerged in her emotion that kept stealing over her in waves, repeating 'I love you"—bringing his lips to her ear; his eyes glowing into hers.

Did he love her? Did he mean it? "Little white child of fear—" She blushed to find herself wondering; more than half believing.

Her memories distracted her all the next morning. By noon she began to fear that she might meet him on the street. She was uncertain what to do. She wanted desperately to talk; ask some one's opinion—in a roundabout way.

Janina was home; she had a sprained ankle. Suddenly Chickie decided to confide in her. Janina knew Jake Munson—she would find out if those things Janina said were true.

He took Chickie's hands gently. "Why did you cry, Chickie?"

Janina's apartment, which she was pleased to call her "studio," was on the top floor of a big flat in the Back Bay. Four dark flights of stairs led to the single great room.

Half way up Chickie paused for breath. A big window let in the sun at this landing. In the light she saw, suddenly a quick, classic figure—a boy, yellow haired, stormy eyed, a youthful petulance in his chin. Seeing Chickie, the blood swept into his cheeks. He passed on quickly.

When she knocked, Janina said "Come in."

Tense, bright unrest in her eyes, lay on a couch, reading. She wore a negligee of orange. When Chickie entered she didn't turn. She said softly, "Come here, Chaffee—I won't do that again."

Glimpsing Chickie, she gazed at her moodily: "Did you see any one going down the stairs?"

"Yes."

Closed Book

She closed her book with a shrug: "I'll tell you something I've just discovered, Chickie. There's a chance for a new God. Let him create a world without sex. We'll have Utopia—not before."

"I didn't think sex was any problem to you. I thought you had it all settled."

Her lip curled. "We don't set the problem; it settles us—Well, how goes it with you and Jake?"

Chickie answered lightly: "I've been to more good shows in a short time than I've seen in all my life before."

Janina watched her narrowly: "Enjoy it while you may. With Jake, Chickie, the flower that once has bloomed forever dies."

Chickie asked with a passion of eagerness she tried to conceal: "Oh, Janina, do you really believe that? Do you think men never take out a girl just for the gaiety of it—just because they have a happy, friendly feeling for her?"

"Sure they do. Lots of them don't want to get in deep—now, young fellows like Barry Dunne, for instance."

"But the others? You think a man like Jake has always some evil motive in his mind?"

"Evil—" Janina dismissed the word with a swift gesture of scorn. "What do you mean by 'evil'? Jake's got a wash of life, that's all. What's evil about that? Oh, this bunk makes me sick! Is it evil to breathe? To eat? To run? I suppose I'm about the evilest thing this side of the inferno. Why? Because I have blood in my veins? Because it gets red hot?" She flicked the ashes from her cigaret. After a long puff: "What is evil, Chickie? Can you answer that?"

Just Look Around.

"It's evil to tamper with things that were given for a great and holy purpose."

Janina drawled, with an amused smile, "Where'd you learn that, baby?"

"Don't make fun of me, Janina. I learned it from Martha Blake. She's read as many books as you have, and she seems to get a wonderful joy out of living."

"Great and holy purpose. I suppose, in children? Is that Martha's answer?"

"I suppose it is."

"Well, it listens good, Chickie, until you look around and see some of those great and holy purposes in the flesh—poor fellows, doomed to sweep streets all their mortal days, children slaving in factories, old maids going into blue, lonely graves—all the dumb beasts that wouldn't give a hang if they were never born. Think they praise the Marthas for their great and holy purposes? Not much! Why, this earth could do very nicely with about half its present population. Increase the quality, cut down on the numbers. Real Malthus, girl. So that answers you there. Now, what's evil?"

Chickie, listening to Janina, had a scourging sense of outrage as though white delicate flowers were torn in rough bits. She rallied valiantly: "But it takes all the beauty out of life, Janina, if you make it so common. It isn't any longer a great, sweeping thing, that you'd be glad to wait all your life to meet. You can't love every one——"

Janina shrugged. "You're a little hypocrite, Chickie! Like all the good people.' Do you mean to sit there and tell me that Jake Munson could put his arm around you and you didn't like it? You didn't find it quite sweet and beautiful enough? You bet you did!

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By Helen Rowland

THE aspirations of every girl's heart, and the great task of her life, is to find a man to match her Hope Chest.

Into that Hope Chest she puts not only filmy laces, shining silks and flower-like chiffons, but filmy dreams, hopes and flower-like illusions.

A man whose charm and devotion will not shrink, turn or fade in the wash of domesticity.

A man as strong as the fibre of her satin wedding gown, and as clean and white as the thoughts she stitched into her snowy linens.

A man as fine and delicate as her chiffon—and as brilliant and charming as the rows on her boudoir cap.

A man as flattering as her tulle wedding veil, yet as solid as her grandfather's silver and as reliable as her grandfather's clock.

A man as gay as the rosettes on her pink satin mules—yet as comforting as her eiderdown bath-slippers.

A man whose love making is as sweet and subtle as her sachets, and whose tastes and thoughts and ideas match her own as perfectly as her blue satin negligee matches her eyes.

A man as glowing and tender as the dreams she embroidered into her monogrammed bath-cushions—yet as sensible and modest and substantial as her gingham bungalow aprons.

A man of vision as clear and beautiful as the shining crystal beads in her evening gown—yet of common sense as sturdy as her flat-heeled golf pumps.

A man as big and vital as her hopes—yet as yielding and soothing as her velvets.

A man whose manners, like all her Hope Chest treasures, are for every day—not just to be shown off "for company."

A man who will cling to her like her wedding gown, protect her like a motor boat, yet leave her as free as her dancing frocks.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL to "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

A SUDDEN consciousness of parallel startled me into words.

Ann Lisle

"That's what is so unfair," I cried. "The clan spirit. Suppose Mabel is from a work-a-day world, while Mr. Buchanan has family and wealth and position of which he's always taking advantage—isn't she entitled to the protection of the society he's flaunting? Mabel's a credit to society. She isn't breaking any rules. Why should he get away with his—impertinence—?"

"Because he's a man," broke in Virginia terse y.

"Are you on his side?" I asked bitterly.

"Not at all," she replied. "I tell you that I saw Bonnie on the club veranda today and made it my business to appear not to see him. But his voice pursued me. He's there are plenty of fellas who will go on accepting him, and most of them don't know who Mabel is. They've never met her, never hear of her. Bonnie's a Buchanan. Can't you see she was—stupid to marry a man outside her own sphere?"

"Oh!" I said stupidly.

Never Occurred to Her

To save my life I couldn't have said more. It was clear enough that Virginia was drawing a parallel even more sweeping and comprehensive than my own had been. For it had never occurred to me to liken myself to Mabel or my marriage to the headlong one she'd taken to save herself from the misery over Park. But I could see—and with rising anger I recognized the point of view—that Virginia put all "outsiders" together on one side of the fence and that to her family and position had certain claims which no one would be silly enough to ignore.

"Of course, this marriage is a farce," Virginia continued smoothly. "Everybody's talking about it. Really the poor wife is in an impossible position. Bonnie's tired of her. She hasn't held him." With a shrug of her shoulders Virginia disposed of women who weren't clever enough to hold their men. Then she went on quickly: "That's why I was so certain she'd come to you, Jim. You're her one hold on—the world we move in. And I'm sure you were always very charming to her when she worked for you. I thought she'd try to enlist you."—

"She came to Anne," said Jim almost curtly.

My heart seemed to leap to my mouth. It was easy to see where the discussion was leading to. As Virginia turned to me with round eyes, Jim arose, yawned and said sleepily:

"It's bedtime. Me to hit the feathers."

I felt as if I'd been given a reprieve at the scaffold. But I didn't know what the sentence would be when another day came.

The Second Day

The second day of our visit to Dreamwold dawned flawless and blue. I got up early and roamed down the familiar old path to the summer house by the river. Nothing on "the old Harrison place" has more memories connected with it than the pavilion by the river. But the time when I could set out most clearly was the moment when I looked down from the corner of the path and had seen Jeanie rising and holding out her arms to Pat.

For a long time I sat by the river seeking for pa ity and for the strength with which to meet Jeanie's inevitable attack on what was left of the marriage from which I'd hoped everything. After a while I heard steps coming down the river path. With heart beating high, I hoped it was Jim. But it was Pat.

"Good morning, Alanne!" he greeted. "'Tis breakfast we'll be having if only we can persuade Queen Anne to leave the beauties of nature and come in to join us at the feast."

Good Health In Happy Old Age

THE chief concern of elderly people is their health, and that is best assured by regular daily bowel movement. There is no truth, however, in the notion that because you are old you need a "strong physic." In fact, just because you are old a mild laxative is better for you. The trouble with purges and cathartics and physics is that they weaken the system and weaken it and make the muscles of digestion flabby. Dr. W. B. Brown, V. S., of Fredericksburg, nearly wrecked his stomach with purgatives. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin restored his health, as it did Mrs. J. S. Etheridge's, of Milledgeville, Ga.

Does Not Gripe

You can be sure of satisfactory evacuations every day if you will take a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin at night when you retire. You will not need to take it very long as a few doses will soon encourage the bowels to act for themselves. The popularity of this wonderful family remedy has become so great that it is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. Because of its mildness and freedom from griping it is especially ideal for the weakness of ages, for children and for elderly people.

Effective at Small Cost

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store. The formula is on the package, and the cost less than a cent a dose. Take it when you feel heavy, sleep poorly, have headache or night vomps, for these are also symptoms of constipation. Give it to the children when they are restless, feverish or have a cold. Syrup Pepsin will keep you and the family free from constipation, a condition that lowers the vitality 25 per cent and raises the blood pressure 28 per cent. Freedom from constipation lessens the pain of kidney trouble, neuritis and rheumatism.

Men Like "Today" Because

It is the thought of a quick thinking man who knows the power of rapid words, and believes that men want to get the news and the facts and at the same time some idea of what it's all about.

A looking glass attachment to one's radio would have come in fine in the case of the recital at WNAC by Marcel Dupre. The great French organist is a wonder at the pedals, and it is worth the price of admission to see his footwork at the organ.

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY BROKEN OUT SKIN

Says Mentho-Sulphur Overcomes Trouble Almost Overnight

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment of disfigurement. A little jar of Rowles Mentho Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is like cold cream.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is also mild though positive. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. Take and see.

'FOLLIES' SHOW AT SHUBERT ON AIR TONIGHT

WNAC to Broadcast Brilliant 'Greenwich Village' Hit at 8:15 P. M.

Another super-feature will be put on the air tonight by WNAC and WEAN, the Shepard Stores.

Tune in at 8:15 p. m. sharp on 278 meters and listen to a program, receivable without difficulties and unexcelled in entertainment.

"The Greenwich Village Follies," which scored so great a hit recently, he has returned to the Shubert Theatre for a second engagement.

And as on the first occasion, the Shepard Stores will again broadcast the opening performance.

Those who have not heard it should be sure and not miss it this time and those who have already heard it will want to hear it again.

COMEDY SPARKLES.

If you take the word of the dramatic critics as well as the average theatre goer, and we've enough of that, you will be convinced that this year's show surpasses former "Greenwich Village Follies" both from the standpoint of the artistic and the unusual.

Although it is an entertaining treat to listen to over the radio, it loses if the girls the technique of the dancing and the humor of the pun and the gag. Of course, the scenery is eliminated but the delightful band and the snappy music will prove a big interest. It's great on the loud speaker.

"MOONLIGHT KISSES."

Of the many musical numbers that have become popular with their introduction in Late Show, "Moonlight Kisses" is considered among the best. This is sung by Irene Delroy, the charming ingenue of the revue, and Al Shelon, who appears in several of the best numbers of the show.

Another attraction of the show is Daphne Pollard, the English music hall comedienne. Radio fans will easily recognize her accent in the two comedy scenes in which she appears.

Radio Queries

What station was broadcasting from Ann Arbor, Mich., about 12:45 a. m. in the evening of March 6. It sounded like WCBT. How can I fix my Radiola Special so that I can get our WNAC and WTAT from the higher wave lengths? G. T. L.

Just below the ventilation point.

That is the University of Michigan station. The announcer there will tell you whether they were on that or then. A wavemeter is the most practical solution for cutting out the local stations.

Which is correct across the coil of the multi-unit-plex described in the American February 23—a .0005 mfd. or a .0005 mfd. condenser can I use UV199 tubes, as I don't want to use a storage battery.

J. J. O'C.

This should be .00025 mfd UV199 tubes can be used.

How do I connect a C battery to my four-tube Super. You say to connect negative to grid terminal but where does the positive terminal connect? L. H.

Remove grid connections from grid of each amplifier tube. Connect loose end of wire to positive of C battery and the negative of C battery to the grid binding post

I have a four-tube Super, using diagram on bottom of page 19 of December issue showing 4 in place of fixed resistance. It had a tendency to whistle, so I knocked it down and reassembled it. The whistle went, but so did the volume. I get some body capacity on the second dial.

Try new fixed condensers. Try varying the dial on the R. F. couplers. Are the rotor plates of second condenser grounded? Is the ground a good one?

I tried a [illegible] neutrodyne, assembled by another fellow. I would like to go over the wiring once more, but have no plans.

Helpful Hints

As much care should be exercised in handling your head phones as you exercise in handling your tubes. Phones are delicate. If you drop them or subject them to a hard jar you may put them out of adjustment.

The same accidents will have a tendency to demagnetize the magnets. In fact, a mishap may lose their magnetism, also.

Dropping the phones is also apt to crack the ear piece. A cracked ear piece, while it may still be comfortable on the head, will not hold the diaphragm down tightly upon the seat. A crack will relieve the air pressure and cause a shrilling tone.

STARS FEATURING WNAC PROGRAM

IRENE DELROY.
Charming ingenue of the "Greenwich Village Follies," who leads several of the best musical numbers of the show. Miss Delroy has been voted by various broadcast announcers as "one of the sweetest girls in the world."

DAPHNE POLLARD.
English Music Hall comedienne in the "Greenwich Village Follies." Radio fans will recognize her accent in the two comedy scenes in which she appears.

TRUST HEARING OPENS TOMORROW

New York, March 10 (Universal)—Charles Pope Caldwell of this city will appear before a Congressional committee tomorrow in the interest of the White bill, which proposes to make impossible an aerial monopoly.

Caldwell has been associated with the companies organized here to thwart the alleged efforts of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company to force out of commission all radio broadcasting plants not specially licensed by them.

JACKS MAY BE USED AS SHELF SUPPORTS

When constructing a two-stage amplifier or a receiving set, with a two step amplifier, use the jacks as the brackets to support the shelf on which you mount the sockets and transformers. This may be easily done by removing the two machine screws that are in the jack and replacing them with longer screws and nuts. The jacks will then serve as excellent shelf supports and save you time and money.

HIGHER TOWERS FOR WOC IN DAVENPORT

High antenna towers have been erected for WOC, in Davenport, Ia., which should bring in that station even better than in the past. The new towers stand on the same building, although a new lead was connected to carry the extra weight.

The Listener

I heard Ted Weems and his band of musicians at the Cafe D'Arlon, Philadelphia, last night for the first time; adding one more first class dance orchestra to the long list now being broadcast by stations in that city.

Radio weddings are getting to be quite common row. The latest one I heard came over the air from WDAP in Chicago the other night. A few months ago one was broadcast by WSAI, Cincinnati. The first one, however, was sent out by WNAC nearly two years ago from the Home Beautiful Exposition in Boston.

Station WHAA, the University of Iowa, at Iowa City, Ia., is beginning to pound in on sets hereabouts as regularly and clearly as Davenport and other stations equally distant. The reason for it is that it has just been raised from a Class C to a Class A station.

A Malden fan says he listened in on R. Cowles' talk, "The Care of Clocks and Their History," at WEAF and didn't tumble for quite awhile that the clocks under consideration were mantelpiece instead of stocking kind.

2-TUBE REFLEX MAKES NEAT RECEIVER

Standard Hookup With Several New Kinks Makes Efficient Set

Nothing strikingly original is claimed for this circuit, but several kinks and one or two changes from the conventional reflex hookups make it worthy of a trial.

The completed receiver is easy to tune, is compact, and should bring in the same distance that a set using an unreflexed stage of radio-frequency should bring in. The balancing parts and condensers make the set very stable.

The tuning coil is wound on a composition tube, three inches in diameter and five inches in length. Use No. 22 single cotton or silk covered wire, and heat the wire to a moderate temperature in the oven before winding. When the wire cools, it will contract and grip the tube in a vise-like grip.

Wind eighty turns on the tube, taking taps at every tenth turn, making a total of eight taps.

SIZE OF PANEL.

The panel needed for this receiver should be either of bakelite, formica or some rubber composition. It measures 7x18 inches. This may seem long, but it allows the constructor plenty of room to place his apparatus.

Measuring off the panel is no easy task. The first move should be the laying out of the hole for the condenser at the left of the panel. The next two holes to be laid out are for the potentiometer and the taps and tap switch.

POTENTIOMETER LOCATED.

From the illustration you can see that the potentiometer is placed directly above the switch taps and switch knobs and in a perpendicular line running through both centers of potentiometer and switch handle knobs.

Directly in the back of panel can be seen the condenser, tuning coil and variometer. In placing the variometer enough space should be allowed to make room for the rotating of the rotor of the variometer.

The variometer shaft should be in line with the shaft of the variable condenser. The last step is the placing of the sockets, rheostats, transformer and sub-panel for the binding posts.

In looking over the diagram four .001 condensers will be found. These should be placed in the set according-ly. The grid condenser calls for .00025 mfd. capacity, with a 2-megohm grid leak placed across the filament and grid of the detector tube in preference to shunting it across the grid condenser. This is essential in this case, as it allows the detector tube to function better than in its previous arrangement.

A variometer is used in the radio-frequency stage of this set because it allows waves of from 200 to 600 meters to be tuned in closely. As in other reflex sets, the success depends to a great extent on the fixed condensers. These should be mica. Oscillation is controlled by the potentiometer. At the top is shown how the parts should be laid out on the panel.

LONDON TEST TO RADIO U. S. JAZZ

London, March 10.—The British are going to try broadcasting to America Thursday night, and the American listeners-in will have to swallow some of their own medicine, for the program will consist of jazz played by Yankee dance bands at a London hotel.

It is the first time the British have tried to radio across the ocean heretofore in all the trans-Atlantic broadcasting they have been on the receiving end, and what they heard was usually saxophonic syncopation, which may or may not explain why they have decided to hurl [illegible] through the air. The transmission will be between one and 2:30 o'clock in the morning, London time.

Radio Receiving Conditions Tonight

Receiving conditions in Boston and vicinity should be good for all programs broadcast east of the Mississippi River. West coast stations probably will be hard to pick up.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic Coughs and Persistent Colds Lead to Serious Lung Trouble. You Can Stop Them Now With Creomulsion, an Emulsified Creosote That Is Pleasant to Take.

Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germs.

Of all known drugs, Creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membrane and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist Creomulsion Co., Atlantic, Ga.

Those Prettier Teeth

Which millions now exhibit—no dingy film

Let this test show the way

Do you marvel at the glistening teeth you see everywhere today? And wonder how folks get them?

In old days, many teeth were clouded more or less. Some were much discolored. All by a dingy film. Now millions of people are fighting that film, and this offers you their method.

Teeth don't discolor

The teeth themselves do not discolor. Some are whiter than others, but nothing will stain the enamel.

Teeth are clouded by a film-coat—that viscous film you feel. Under old-way brushing, much of it clings and stays. No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats it.

Soon that film discolors, forming dingy coats. That is how teeth lose their beauty.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

That is why few escaped tooth troubles under old ways of teeth cleaning.

Now we combat film

Modern science has found ways to fight that film on teeth. One method disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Many careful tests have proved these methods effective. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Leading dentists everywhere began to advise it. The use fast spread the world over. Now to careful people of some 50 nations it has brought a new dental era.

Old methods wrong

Research also proves that former methods brought undesired effects. They reduced the alkalinity of the saliva, which is there to neutralize mouth acids. They reduced the starch digestant in the saliva, which is there to digest starch deposits on teeth.

Pepsodent is made to bring just opposite effects. It multiplies that alkalinity, multiplies that starch digestant. Thus it gives increased power to these great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth.

Amazing results

These combined results will amaze and delight you. They will bring you a new conception of what clean teeth mean.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

A week will convince you that this method should displace all others in your home. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel
Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

3 MINUTE JOURNEYS

The Wonderful Capital of the U. S. of Brazil.

NOT even Naples with its fa[mous] bay in an[other] Rio de Janeiro appears to the [trav]elers entering the harbor [of] capital of Brazil. A [vast] seems as if one were in another world, for ocean, bounda[ry] mountains are so different in color and configuration from what one is accustomed to.

The sea is the most brilliant blue except in the shallows where it is a bright green. The islands are covered with deep green [trees] splotched with bright red [flow]ers.

The city is dazzling in its whiteness, and its palaces from a distance are fairy like. [Behind] the city is sharp pointed [mountains] of the mountains [are] sometimes cave rather than convex, and the white villas which climb their sides are apparently defying the laws of gravitation.

A beautiful esplanade runs along the harbor front, culminating away to the left from the steamer's dock in the most curious mountain that ever arose directly from the sea. It is called "Sugar [Loaf]" and that is exactly what it looks like. Its sides must [be] so [steep] that no use it is so steep that vegetation cannot get hold of it. The mountain is over ten thousand feet high and is so precipitous that only within the last fifteen years has it been scaled. Now a cable runs from another hill about four hundred feet high, and tourists are carried by car suspended from this cable to the summit of the Cone.

Once ashore in Rio you discover that South America is quite unlike North America in many ways, very well. The Museum [of] Peace in one of the most beautiful structures in the world. The public library has half a million books and a system which compares well with Boston or New York for circulation. There are fine hotels, big stores, and a wonderful opera house. The Palace of the President is set in a beautiful tropical garden with an esplanade to the sea, with rows of royal palms on either side.

In the harbor is a powerful battle ships flying the flag of Brazil. The population is such that you will not see as many negroes on the streets of Rio as you will in Washington, D. C. for example. The Brazilians have [a] fine street railway system, [and] electric lighting [is] [uni]versal. [Ser]ious submarines [and] [air]planes are [be]ing [built] and [the] taxis are fine for one [hour] of the cattle [that] [still] serve American [ci]ties. Brazil is a very large [coun]try and such cities as Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo and Santos in the south are white cities. In the northern and more tropical [part] of Brazil [the] are enormous black and [mu]lat[to] populations. The police, sanitary and government of Rio combine to impress the tourist with a sense of stability. There are few evidences remaining of the days when it was an empire with a Portuguese court.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

A MODERN matrimonial agency in the west has done away with correspondence and is now broadcasting love by radio.

ANY man with a good receiving set will be able to get and kisses he wants on the receiving end.

THE only trouble with radio kisses is that they're usually full of static.

AND when a man is receiving this kind of proposal he doesn't want any interference.

A KISS may be all right when it leaves your sweetheart, but it isn't much good after five or ten thousand people have tuned in on it.

IT'S flat by the time it reaches you.

YOUR girl may be broadcasting for your benefit, but her affections are open to the public.

THIS is a great thing for married men. A man in New York can be sitting in the parlor with his wife and get an air lecture on words from Chicago.

THE only drawback is that one has to receive it on the same phone.

IT'S easy enough to get rid of an inside loop, but a louder and sweeter if you receive them with an aerial.

THE most disappointing thing in the world is to be receiving a bunch of smacks from the ether and then have some ship operator send a code message right in the middle of them.

THE advantage of the radio is that a girl with ten or fifteen fiancee can broadcast to all of them at the same time.

A KISS that goes all the way from Omaha to Brooklyn in the middle of the night is bound to be cold. One guy thought he could make them warmer by heating the mail.

HE tried it and the kisses came over so hot that the only thing which saved his house from catching on fire was the lightning arrester.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

By Mark Sullivan

The Lovely Woman Who Was a Traitor's Wife.

OF the early Philadelphia families there was none more distinguished than the Shippens. Edward Shippen, a Quaker, was Mayor of Philadelphia, and had been most successful in business so much so that he is described as being the biggest man, having the biggest house and the biggest carriage in Philadelphia." His house was called "Shippen's mansion" and "the governor's house."

This man was the ancestor of Margaret Shippen, and her father Edward Shippen, was also distinguished—not only through his heritage of good breeding and wealth, but on account of the prominent position which he held in the community. He was afterward Chief Justice of Pennsylvania.

Margaret was the belle of her time. She was, as one biographer writes, "the toast of the town." For she was very beautiful, vivacious, charming and eighteen.

It is said that during the occupation of Philadelphia many of the British officers were so taken with the fair Margaret's charm that it was with great difficulty that they answered the call of duty and left the quaint city where she held court.

But soon came along the dashing and handsome young officer, resplendent in his glittering uniform, who captured her heart. It was Benedict Arnold, the very mention of whose name to this very date in the states those whose countrymen he was.

It was supposedly to be a very fine match, entirely agreeable to the Shippens, for in a letter from one of Margaret's relatives it is later is written:

"We understand that General Arnold, a fine gentleman, lays close seige to Peggy's heart."

They were married. But unfortunately they did not "live happily ever afterward." Benedict turned traitor to his country when with Andre he planned the surrender of West Point to the British.

It has been hinted that Margaret aided her husband in this because she had known Andre in Philadelphia and had correspondence with him. But if one reads the tragic scene when Benedict Arnold told his wife that he must flee immediately when he was discovered that possibility of her playing a role resembling Lady Macbeth vanishes.

This inference is surely denied by John Jay's statement in a letter in which he said:

"All the world is cursing Arnold and pitying his wife."

And Robert Morris wrote in the same year when he said:

"Poor Mrs. Arnold. Was there ever such an infernal villain?"

"Poor Mrs. Arnold!" went from West Point, where the tragedy took place, to her father's house in Philadelphia. But she was not allowed to remain there. She was obliged to share the hatred and disgrace which fell upon her husband. She removed to New York, where all along the journey she was conscious of the fact that in every village her husband's effigy had been burned.

Soon after, however, the Arnolds lived at John Street Brunswick, but spent the later years of their lives in England in misery. Margaret lived three years after her traitor husband died. She was only forty three when she breathed her last unhappy breath in 1804.

Margaret Arnold was a fascinating woman, whose charm captured all who knew her. It is said that with all her humiliation and sorrow she was even lovely up to the time of her death. Her memory is cherished as an unfortunate woman whose life was blasted cruelly by another's crime.

When my little son, aged six and his playmates were playing in the sand one day, he said, "Come let's make an island."

"What's that?" one of them asked.

"Oh, it's a puddle of water with a pile of dirt in the middle of it," he explained.

WORDS FROM THE WISE MEN

Gambling is but one remove from theft, and both are the spring of covetousness.

An oath is not needed by a good man, nor will it prevent the bad man from perjuring himself.

What wound ever did heal, save by degrees.

A man without courage is a knife without an edge.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

In the South, March 10.—Bobbie Jones of Atlanta, the greatest golf player in America, who is to enter at the end of this month a trust company that specializes in real estate, made a remark which set me thinking. We were playing golf—he was playing golf; I was playing at it—over a course which stretched down dales and over hills with trees and woods on all sides. The day was ideal.

"Thank you," he replied, when I suggested that it would be very easy to find a promising banking job for him in New York; "but I would rather continue to live in Atlanta and earn half as much than live in New York even with a large income."

R. S. Hecht, president of the famous Hibernia Bank of New Orleans, who has built up a national reputation, has had several glittering financial offers, I understand, to move to New York, but, although he received his first banking experience in the North and Chicago, he, like Bobbie Jones, prefers to live in the South.

Mr. Hecht's reasoning is that a mere monetary matter is no tremendous inducement once a man has attained a position where he can comfortably provide for his family. Also, Mr. Hecht, like not a few other leading citizens in other cities, feels that there is more scope for really helpful civic and public service, where they are than there would be in New York, where the biggest of men usually get lost in the shuffle. Incidentally, Mr. Hecht was last year awarded the cup presented annually to that citizen who has rendered the most valuable public-spirited service to the city.

One of the most dynamic Chamber of Commerce managers in the whole country is Clarence O. Kuester, of Charlotte. He is doing probably more than any other citizen to build up that prorrrsseive city along sound, well-balanced lines. I asked Mr. Kuester if he would like to get a similar position in a much larger city. He replied: "I hardly think I could be weaned away from my native State. I love North Carolina and I love Charlotte. I love the work I am trying to do. While I will never get rich at this job, the Chamber gives me every opportunity and encouragement to go ahead and do things to benefit the city and the State. I am among my own people and can throw my whole heart and soul into planning and working for them."

After a pause, he added: "I guess Charlotte is the place for me."

During my travels I met and saw a good deal of an unusually able newspaper writer, Meigs O. Frost, in New Orleans. When we fell into talking "shop" I expressed astonishment that he had not sought New York or other metropolitan field for his talents. He replied that there wasn't enough money in New York to get him to live there, and that the thought of having to visit New York to discuss the bringing out of his new book by a New York publisher contributed to my joy for him. He found life infinitely richer in historic old New Orleans and among the quaint folks in certain parts of Louisiana.

James B. Duke, the tobacco king, has had the habit of building palaces in the East, but he is now turning his eyes and his footsteps more towards his native North Carolina, and has built a castle there. From all accounts, he now has his heart more in his gigantic water power development work through the South than in his tobacco business. As his hair turns grayer, he evidently is being drawn back to the South.

* * *

What is there in life down South and out West, which takes so strong a grip upon people there?

* * *

Do they find, most of them, something more satisfying to their inner selves than do many of us who live in the East and the North?

* * *

May it be, I wonder, that in our teeming, throbbing, hustling metropolitan cities we have allowed business, money making, materialism, getting-on, to dominate our lives to such unhealthy, unwholesome, unsatisfactory degree?

Have we forgotten that business was made for man, not man for business?

How do you read the riddle?

Oils and Rails Are Most Active Groups in Steady New York Market

LEATHERS ARE SOFT, BUT INACTIVE

Oils and rails were most active groups in a fairly steady New York stock market. Leather issues were soft, but inactive, with Central Leather preferred off over a point.

There were point or more declines in the late afternoon for American Can, American Sugar, Coca-Cola, Mathieson, Cosden, Colorado Fuel, Crucible, Gulf States, Houston, Mack, Pullman, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and Associated Oil issues.

At the same time there were point or better gains for New York Central, Famous Players, General Electric and Woolworth, the last-named at a new top.

In the bond division improvement in French governmental and municipal issues, after the recovery of the franc, featured dealings which were marked by considerable irregularity.

Renewed weakness in Chemical issues developed, American Agricultural Chemical and Virginia-Carolina Chemical losing from 1 to 2 points. Uncertainty regarding the new financing plans of Wilson & Co. brought some selling of the company's foreign issues to the down a point and the convertible 7½s 3 points.

Norfolk & Western convertible 6s moved up a point to a new high price for the year, but failed to hold at that level.

American Telephone at Fresh Top Since 1916

American Telephone sold at a fresh top since 1916 at 130⅜ in trading on the Boston Stock Exchange.

Norwich & Worcester was up 3 points. There were point declines for Eastern Steamship, Mexican Investment and Waltham Watch, pfd.

Issues fractionally off were New Haven, Shoe, Swift, N. E. Telephone and Ventura Oil.

Warren Bros. sold a bit higher.

TRAVEL NOTES

By Bobbie Shafto

SCOTTISH CLANS' TRIP TO SCOTLAND.

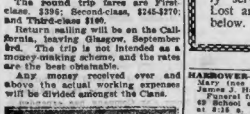
Members and friends of the Order of Scottish Clans can enjoy a month's vacation among the heather clad hills of the auld land this summer, by arrangement with the Cunard-Anchor Lines for a special sailing of July 5, California to Glasgow, July 26.

With a wholly Scots passenger list, with Clansmen meeting Clansmen and other o'oer ain folk from practically every part of the country, the trip cannot help furnishing the utmost in pleasure and benefit.

The trip trip rates are: First-class, $396; Second-class, $245-$270; and Third-class $160.

Return sailing will be on the California, leaving Glasgow, September 3rd. The trip is not intended as a money-saving scheme, and the rates are the best obtainable.

Any money received over and above the actual working expenses will be divided amongst the Clans.



"The Simple Life in Bermuda."

BEAUTIFUL BERMUDA SEASON NOW ON.

Bermuda is recognized today as an all-the-year-round resort, but if there is a time that may be considered as "The Season" there, it is right now.

The fair air, blue sky, sunny coral beaches, palms, foliage and flowers that the fortunate visitors to those delightful little coral islands are now enjoying seem more alluring by contrast with our Northern weather conditions.

All kinds of bracing outdoor sports and pastimes are now in full swing down there—golf, tennis, cricket, driving, sailing, bathing, fishing and so forth.

And this pleasant "foreign country" of pounds, shillings and pence is within forty-eight hours' pleasant sail of New York by large and comfortable ocean steamships.

FLORIDA'S WONDERFUL SILVER SPRINGS.

If Silver Springs were located in California, every inhabitant of that State would know all about these Springs, would look on them as one of the greatest wonders of the world, and would never fail to express a high opinion of them at every opportunity.

California would advertise these Springs at lower the known world, and thousands of tourists would visit California, if not for the sole purpose of seeing Silver Springs, by way, with the intention of seeing them, making the visit to them one of the big features of the trip.

The tropical foliage along Silver River, the many different kinds of fish which can be seen in the exceptionally clear water, the indescribable colorings of the formation and plant life in the bed of the springs and the numerous alligators that one sees sunning themselves on the shores of the river, are sights that Northern and Western tourists will remember all their lives.

TRAVEL BOOTH AT AUTOMOBILE SHOW.

A stereomotograph showing beautifully colored views of Bermuda, the National Parks, Canada, etc., is a feature of the Boston American Hotel and Travel Bureau, Booth 605, at the Automobile show this week.

Here visitors to exhibitions may secure expert travel information and reservation service, and interesting literature covering every vacation route in this country and abroad.

WATER TRIPS POPULAR FOR VACATIONS

The approach of Spring is a reminder of vacation days that may be enjoyed in anticipation as well as in reality.

There is a noticeable increase in the number of travelers who turn to salt water trips as representing the maximum pleasure and benefit to be derived for a fixed amount of time and for a certain sum of money.

Among the opportunities that are offered people living near the Atlantic seaboard to take short beneficial ocean trips, the Merchants & Miners, which started business on this coast back in 1854, is one of the favorite lines, since one can journey between Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Richmore or can use the lines with two sailings weekly from Baltimore and Philadelphia to Savannah and Jacksonville.

The long restful hours at sea have no equal for restoration of vigor and, as the steamers on these ships are spacious, with baths and toilets, and the music rooms and social halls attractively furnished for indoor hours, there' is no cessation of pleasure when darkness changes the hours up

Why Truancy Is Less

School Work Made More Interesting

We are interested in the statement of Miss Curtis of the Boston School Committee that truancy has greatly fallen off since the school work has been made so much more interesting.

We are glad to hear it. We are glad to hear that a sound principle is proving itself to have collateral benefits.

Even if no benefit flowed from making the school curriculum more interesting to the scholars, it would still be justified, for after we have struggled to keep life, to gain and preserve liberty, our great charter—The Declaration of Independence—tells us that our next object is the pursuit of happiness.

When we have secured our lives so far as we can secure them, and feel fairly sure of our liberty, the next object of our endeavor is the pursuit of happiness. And children are among those who have the right to pursue happiness.

Childhood is a very important part of life. When we stand at the eminence of accumulated years and look back over the past, the period of our childhood—the shortest of all in point of time—seems the longest to us in our memory. And if it has been happy, we have had the longest single period happy.

Moreover, a pleasant recollection of school and of books saves a final education to many a boy whose circumstances compel him to leave school before his education is completed. If he left school with pleasant recollections of his studies and his books, he is very likely to seize upon whatever opportunities are afforded him to pursue his studies and to become an educated man in a way in which education is most valuable —when it is self-taught. But if school was made dull and hateful to him, he is very likely to end his schooling when he quits the school.

So the modern method of making school interesting to children is twice blessed—it blesses the child with happiness which is his inalienable right and it blesses the child and the nation with a predisposition on the part of the child to continue an education which he finds so pleasant.

Old, Old America

An Old, Old World

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

Scientists have brought back from New Mexico objects much older than anything in King Tutankhamen's tomb, older than that Pharaoh's great-great-grandmother. You may see these wonderful things in the Museum of National History—free.

There are Indian blankets that were worn in New Mexico when Lot looked around and saw his wife was turned into salt. There are shoes that natives of our Southwest were when Moses was rocking in the bull rushes, waiting to be discovered.

But all that is modern compared with our land itself. When you look over real estate in Florida, as this writer did recently, they tell you, quite as a matter of course, that the wonderful rolling lake lands on the West Coast are about two million years older than the more modern formations on the East Coast of Florida. And you know, of course, that the soil was forming on the top of North America in the sunlight while South America was still under the water. How old is the world?

Several hundred millions of years, scientists say. How much longer will it last? Two or three hundred million years, and all the time it is rolling through space, more than 500,000,000 miles every year. Some journey, n'est ce pas?

Frank Munsey Is Great

Great Also Is the Evening Journal

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

La Guardia, Congressman from New York, discovers a plot. Messrs. Doheny, Mellon, Munsey and Ford are in it. They plan to corner money, industry and newspapers in the United States. That would be important, but it isn't true.

Ford doesn't plan anything with anybody.

Mellon knows enough about money to know you can't corner it.

Munsey isn't cornering newspapers, he is only buying them up and killing them off, blessings on his golden head. Doheny isn't planning or plotting with anybody at present.

Newspapers luckily can't be cornered. If one man bought all the newspapers somebody else would start another independent paper and have more circulation than all the others.

Munsey in his day has bought eight New York newspapers—Press, News, Sun, Evening Sun, Herald, Telegram, Mail, and Globe. He still has four, "intertwined" as he puts it. The New York Evening Journal which never "intertwined" with anybody or anything has very much more circulation than all of Mr. Munsey's newspapers combined.

Nevertheless, Frank A. Munsey is an able, brilliant editor.

The French Air Battleships

They Have a Warning for Us

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

The British Prime Minister tells Poincare that he does not understand the military preparations of France, especially the GIGANTIC FRENCH AIR FLEET. That's diplomatic politeness. Ramsay MacDonald understands QUITE well.

The French military machine, and the fighting air fleet especially, say to the British Empire, "Mind YOUR business. Don't interfere with US. You rule the sea. WE NOW RULE THE AIR, and that gives us the real power in this world."

"In Napoleon's day that little channel kept you safe. In this day our air fleet from its great base at Mount Saint Michel could strike and destroy London, including the royal palaces, within six hours of a declaration of war."

MacDonald, like every Englishman, understands well the meaning of the French air fleet. Will the government of THIS country understand it and begin to show some signs of interest in it?

Today everybody knows that an airship sent from Paris at noon could bomb London or Berlin that afternoon. How long will it be before such an airship will be within striking distance of New York? We have no royal palaces, but we have some royal banks, and considerable populations to suffer through foolish waiting.

The Old Swimming Hole

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

A STRONG movement for peace is under way. From press and pulpit come scores of schemes whereby people may be educated into a hatred of war. But those schemes will fail. You can't stop wars by educating people to hate fights or to love peace. Wars do not spring from a desire to fight. They spring from OUR FEAR AND DISLIKE OF PEOPLE WITH DIFFERENT SKINS AND DIFFERENT VIEWPOINTS. And as long as that fear and dislike continue, so long as we remain in such hostile ignorance concerning each other, just so long will we have wars whenever we're strong enough to fight.

Even the stupidest of us realize that this last war was manipulated by those who sat in high and safe places. Now that our hysteria has cooled, we think of the driven Austrian and German peasants, as well as of those other millions who died in a conflict which they did not understand and never could have caused.

"They were but puppets," we sigh. "Poor puppets! The war lords pulled the strings that sent them to their death."

Yes, that is partly true. But only partly. Why were the war lords able to pull the strings? Men who could fight as those men fought were not as easily manipulated as bits of wood or paper. There must have been something in themselves which consented to that manipulation—something upon which the war lords could build their schemes. There was. THERE WAS FEAR, HATE AND IGNORANCE OF FOREIGN PEOPLES. No matter how strong or crafty the war lords, that war could never have occurred if all of us who were involved had not a deep distrust of strangers.

We're not going to save the world from another war by preaching peace plans. We can only avert war by learning to be friendly toward each other. That's a job, not for nations or States or cities or institutions, but for each individual human being. First we'll have to blast away the hardpan of ignorance that lies in each one of us before love or tolerance can even strike root. WE'LL HAVE TO LEARN THAT PEOPLE REALLY AREN'T DIFFERENT. Their skins may be different, their foods or politics or jobs or bank accounts may be different, BUT IN THE FUNDAMENTALS ALL PEOPLE ARE THE SAME. We all have some beauty and some beastliness within us. We all love our homes, our children, our wives and husbands. We all take pride in good work and honor courage and cleverness.

The attributes which make a man popular in the African jungle make him popular in Moscow or Berlin, Rome, London or Washington. In their basic impulses all men are alike—the capitalist and the laborer are alike; the Congregationalist and the Catholic are alike; the Yale professor and the "poor whites" of Kentucky are alike; the Yankee and the Westerner are alike; the American and the German are alike; the white man and the negro, the Jap, the Chinaman, the Indian, are alike.

This isn't propaganda. It is truth. It is biological truth and psychological truth and Christian truth. It's the deepest truth on earth. It comes before all other truth. If we really believe it and act upon it, every source of human sadness would vanish. It would obliterate every problem. It would obliterate war. For one class of men would never fight against another class of men if the walls of strangeness between men were really broken down. The French Revolution would never have occurred if the French aristocrats had realized that the French peasants were one with them in dreams and appetites. The Civil War would never had occurred if the South had realized the negro's bond of common humanity. Wars cater to the greed of a few, but they become possible because of the ignorance and fear rooted in the hearts of many.

IF YOU DON'T WANT YOUR BOY TO BE KILLED IN THE NEXT WAR, MARY, BEGIN TO LOVE ALL OTHER BOYS WHO MIGHT ALSO BE KILLED IN THAT WAR. Begin to understand all other mothers. Pluck out of your own heart the seeds of hate and stupidity which alone make possible that next war in which your boy may die. The prevention of war isn't up to the big men in Washington or London, Paris or Berlin. IT'S UP TO YOU. NO POLITICIANS ON EARTH CAN MAKE A WAR UNLESS YOU SUPPLY THE HATE ON WHICH THEY CAN BASE THAT WAR.

If you really want to keep the enemy from your throat, Bill, begin right now by learning that he isn't your enemy. Stop thinking of people as enemies. Stop listening to agitators and begin to figure this thing out with your own good sense. Stop looking for differences in people—begin looking for similarities. Stop thinking of grievances—begin to think of mutual service. IF YOU DON'T WANT A WAR IN EUROPE IN 1930, STOP STARTING ONE NOW IN YOUR OWN HEAD IN 1924. If that war comes, it will not be due to the greed of politicians nor the viciousness of diplomats—it will be due to the hate which YOU have fostered within YOUR soul.

Eight Children In Need

Editor Helping Hand:

I have heard that you are helping people who are in need of clothing. My father has not been working or three years, because he has been sick. There are eight children in the family, girls fifteen, thirteen, ten and eight, and boys sixteen, fourteen, twelve and six. The boy who is twelve has nothing to wear, and all of us need things. No one is working at present except one girl.

NANCY.

Another Gets It

Editor Helping Hand:

Called at the address on Harrison avenue that you gave me to deliver baby carriage and was informed that Mrs. T. G. had left there two weeks ago and they did not know where she could be located. So I thought that you may have another address in the vicinity of Boston. MRS. J. G.

Thank you for the trouble you have taken. We are sending you the address of Mrs. J. L., whose little four-months-old baby has recently been operated on and needs the fresh air.

Clothes to Make Over

Editor Helping Hand:

My mother has eight children, and I am the oldest—thirteen. My mother would like to get a carriage of some kind. We all need clothing. I have two brothers four and two years old, and four sisters, six, eight, ten and twelve years old. Our baby is five months old. My father makes very little money, and my mother is not feeling very well. We would be thankful for any kind of clothes, as my mother can make over. HELEN.

Generous Giver

Editor Helping Hand:

Enclosed kindly find two clippings cut from your paper of Monday, February 25. Am sending check for ten dollars, which I wish you would divide and forward each party the sum of five dollars. Thank you. Keep my name unknown. MISS C. S.

Again we thank you. Two more people will have occasion to bless the generous unknown giver.

Asks for Mother

Editor Helping Hand:

My father got hurt the first of November and lost his job and has not worked full time since. I am a little girl eleven years old, and I have two little brothers eight years old and four months old. My mother cannot buy us any clothes. My mother is size 36, and she has no clothes to go out with. My father is size 40, and he has not had a suit or coat for three years. Now he says that no one would give him work the way he looks. He works two days a week for the city. Will you please try to help us, and we will all thank you. MARY.

Thankful for Anything

Editor Helping Hand:

I have four children, and my husband's pay is very small. Would you please see if someone has some baby's clothes for my expected baby? I have not even so much as a shirt to put on it. Please see if some kind person has some clothes they are through with. I will be very thankful for most anything. A. L. P.

A Kindly Gift

Editor Helping Hand:

I am very much obliged to you for giving me the address of Mrs. M. H. 2, but regret I will not have an opportunity to learn anything of the family's condition. I wish to contribute something to relieve their want, as expressed recently in your paper, and trust you will forward to them the amount of the enclosed check. A. D. K.

Thank you. Your gift of ten dollars, which has been forwarded to Mrs. M. H. 2, will go a long way toward relieving their want.

Life Is Brighter Now

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you please publish my letter of thanks to all the kind people who have helped me. On Sunday some kind ladies called, while I was at the hospital, and left bundles of clothes, also a basket of apples. I don't know whom to thank, but I wish I did. Life seems a great deal brighter today for me than it did a week ago, thanks to the Boston American, and I will never forget it. Some day may I lend a helping hand to some one in distress. I don't need anything else, as I have now more clothes than I have had in years. MRS. H. H. H.

For Patchwork

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a great many calico and gingham pieces, suitable for patchwork quilts. If you send me some one's address I will gladly send them parcel post. M. T.

Thank you. We are always

DR. FRANK CRANE ON DESTROYING THE SEED CORN

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WHEN a nation starves, maltreats, neglects or in any wise vitiates its children, it is destroying the seed corn. Of all seditious and short-sighted policies those that involve the destruction of the health or the neglect of the training of the children are the worst.

When the subject of Child Labor comes up many people are inclined to pooh-pooh it. When people do not see children in their immediate vicinity engaged in stunting labor they are inclined to think that the cry against Child Labor comes from fanatics and sentimentalists. As a matter of fact, one child out of every twelve, between the ages of ten and sixteen years, a total of over a million children, was reported by the 1920 Census as "gainfully employed."

These children, according to the facts collected by Harold Cary, can be found in cotton, silk and woolen mills, in canneries, cigar factories, coal mines and restaurants; also in tenements making such things as clothing, flowers, feathers, jewelry and bed springs; also in beet fields and in other agricultural work.

A certain amount of work is good for children provided the work is a part of their educational training and tends to make them good citizens and to improve their health and intelligence.

But most of the Child Labor in the United States is not of this kind.

For instance, the Children's Bureau reports on the boys who work in coal mines as follows:

"These boys worked in the constant roar which the coal makes as it rushes down the chute, is broken in the crushing machines, or sorted into the shakers. Black coal dust is everywhere, covering the windows and filling the lungs of the workers. The slate is sharp, so that the slate pickers often cut or bruise their hands; the coal is carried down the chute in water, and this means sore and swollen hands for the pickers. The first few weeks after the boy begins work, his fingers bleed almost continuously and are called red-tops by the other boys."

We have not gone far yet; we have not seen all there is to see, for we have discussed only mills and mines, two of the worst things and yet not the greatest. There are over a million children at regular work today. It is a thing which the minority is putting over on the majority. We know Congress is against it, for instance, because it has passed two national child labor laws. But both were thrown out by the Supreme Court, bag and baggage. Conditions are getting worse again. Those laws did some good, but it is amazing how the situation has gone back since they were killed.

Mr. Cary points out that the majority of the people of the country do not want this sort of thing. A small minority, aided by inertia and indifference, is putting over an appalling condition on the majority.

Congress has passed two successive laws endeavoring to protect the child by reasonable control of Child Labor. Each time the United States Supreme Court declared the laws unconstitutional. It is time, now, to pass a Constitutional Amendment.

The Constitution has already been amended a number of times, but not in any instance has the need been so great for an amendment as in this matter of Child Labor.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON COLLISION FIGURES

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

"A locomotive traveling sixty miles an hour comes into head-on collision with an auto traveling thirty miles an hour in the opposite direction; also the same locomotive, traveling 90 miles an hour comes into head-on collision with the same auto standing still. Is the force of impact equal in both cases, and if it is, why should the latter be thrown farther the second time?

"J. R. F., Oakland."

If the mass (weight) of the auto was the same as that of the locomotive, the total momentum would be the same in both cases, for if we represent the weight of each by x, then the momentum of the locomotive, in the first case, would be 60*x* and that of the auto 30*x*, making 90*x* in all. In the second case the momentum of the locomotive would be 90*x* and that of the auto 0*x*, making, as before, 90*x* in all. Momentum is the product of the mass and velocity; mass without motion has no momentum.

But owing to the difference of velocity, although the colliding masses were equal, the effect upon both would not be the same. The one having the smaller velocity would be driven backward. In calculating the effect we must consider that the velocity of the auto is negative with relation to that of the locomotive, so that, supposing the latter to have no elasticity we should have this equation:

Common vel. after impact equals:

$$\frac{60x - 30x}{2x}$$

Solving this we get for the velocity of the two colliding bodies after impact, supposing them to remain attached, fifteen miles an hour, in the plus direction, i. e., the direction in which the locomotive was traveling before the collision.

In the second case the equation stands:

which shows a common velocity of forty-five miles an hour in the plus direction.

But we have been assuming that the colliding bodies are inelastic. In reality, this could not be so although it is difficult to say just what degree of elasticity should be ascribed to them. Perfect elasticity being represented by 1 (unity), let us suppose that the elasticity of the colliding bodies is 3-4 (.75 decimal). Also let us ascribe a mere probable ratio of masses to the bodies in collision, calling the weight of the locomotive thirty tons and that of the auto two tons.

Introducing these conditions into our calculations, we find that after the collision in the first case, the locomotive would continue to move ahead with a velocity of 53.5 miles an hour, while the auto would be driven backward with a velocity of 83.5 miles an hour. In the second case (locomotive speed 90, auto stationary) the locomotive would go on with a velocity of 82.5 miles an hour, and the auto would be shot in the same direction with a velocity of 112.5 miles an hour.

The figures would be different if the auto was going in the same direction as the locomotive. Then, with the same data as above, in the first case, the speed of the locomotive after collision would be 54.25 miles per hour, and that of the auto, 86.25 miles per hour.

If you wish to see how the elasticity is introduced into the calculations, I will show you the formulas. Let m stand for the coefficient of elasticity, i. e., the number representing the imperfect elasticity cannot exist, except theoretically). Also let m and m' represent the respective masses of the two bodies and v and v' their velocities before impact, then:

Vel. of m' after impact equals:

$$\frac{mv\ plus\ m'v'\ plus\ m(v'\ minus\ v')}{m\ plus\ m'}$$

Vel. of m after impact equals:

$$\frac{mv\ plus\ m'v'\ plus\ m'(v\ minus\ v')}{mv\ plus\ m'v'\ plus\ m(v'\ minus\ v')}$$

In which m plus m' equals 2.

Be careful to remember that when m is moving in an opposite direction to m', v becomes negative, for the figures representing it must be entered with the minus sign, and that subtracting a minus, or negative, quantity is equivalent to adding an equal positive quantity. With these precautions, one may have a lot of intellectual sport and at the same time a lot of knowledge by getting acquainted with the mathematician's pure delight—formulas.
